Future Right Of Voting In Germany Will Depend Upon Baptism In Sweat

Hitler Tells 52,000 Brawny Nazis That They are Socialists in Deed and Expression of Labor Service.

DRILL WITH SPADES

Nazi Women Will Meet This Year But Only as Subordinate Factors in Policies.

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 6 (AP)—The time will come when no German can become a voting citizen until he has served a period in a Nazi labor camp, Adolf Hitler told 52,000 brawny and tanned young men standing before him on Zeppelin meadow today.

The youths, wearing earth-brown uniforms and holding spades as they stood at attention, are members of labor camps from all parts of Germany. They came here to provide one of the mass spectacles of the annual national socialist party convention.

"You are a living expression of what our labor service, once it is fully developed, will be like," Hitler said.

"The time will come when no German can enter the community of the German nation unless he has entered and experienced the community of the labor camp. We are socialists in deed, and not only in theory."

The youths executed the military manual of arms with their highly polished spades.

Constantin Hierl, in charge of the labor camp service, announced that 150,000 labor camp youths throughout Germany were standing at attention, listening to a broadcast of the Nurnberg exercises.

The youths presented the usual pageant of flags, and than gave tribute to the World War dead. An effective speaking chorus of young men proclaimed how they had been jobless, living in stuffy tenements, or growing pale over books until the healthy life of the labor camps reddened their cheeks and developed their bodies.

After the exercises Hitler drove to Market Square, now named Adolf Hitler Platz, where all the labor camp youths marched before him.

The addition of the labor camp demonstration to the convention program relegated even further to the background the place of women in the party conclave.

Nazi women, in accordance with a Nazi conviction that politics is a man's game, must be content this year to meet in one of thirteen sectional meetings, which will take place Saturday. Women will not even be permitted to conduct their single session. The presiding officer will be a man.

Evidence that anti-Semitism remains a cardinal point of Nazi philosophy was seen today not only in allusions of Hitler and other speakers to the Jewish question, but also in the official convention program, copies of which were sold by the hundreds of thousands. A foreword in the program, written by Julius Streicher, Nazi leader of Franconia and editor of the anti-Semitic Stuermer, stated:

"Without a solution of the Jewish question there is no salvation for the German people."

Hitler addressed himself to the question yesterday at a gathering of a Nazi culture section of the convention.

"Jewish intellectualism, penetrating Europe, resulted in a completely inconsistent attitude toward cultural problems," he asserted. "The spiritual confusion began in the middle ages when classic art was plundered and mechanically copied."

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS IN "LABORATORY LIFE"

Philadelphia, Sept. 6 (AP)—The 22 youthful human "test tubes" whose childish bodies are the final proving ground of an anti-infantile paralysis vaccine are finding health and happiness in "laboratory" life.

For almost two weeks the 10 boys and 12 girls, ranging in age from 8 months to 15 years, have romped together all day long in a sun parlor, fitted up as a special "laboratory" ward, in Temple University Hospital.

Isolated and under constant observation due to the danger that the virus in the vaccine might infect instead of immunize them, the children have shown no ill effects from the first of three inoculations.

Two sons of the Temple medical professor who developed the vaccine, Dr. John A. Kolmer, are in the group, made up of volunteers whose vaccination was asked by parents.

Two of the 22 are negroes, three are from one family, and two from another.

The progress of the experiment was disclosed yesterday by the vaccine's discoverer in a health clinic talk in which he said results thus far have made him "a very happy man".

Probing Death of Fred Mesle

Sherrill, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP)—Coroner Nelson O. Brooks today began an investigation into the death of Fred W. Mesle, 45, whose body was found on the outskirts of Sherrill yesterday by Boy Scout searchers. Mesle, a native of Niagara Falls employed by Oneida Community, Ltd., was last seen August 20 when his wife and children left for Niagara Falls for a visit. He was not reported missing until Tuesday, however.

Government Expenditures Pass The Billion Mark For The Year

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (AP)—The government's expenditures so far this year, treasury figures showed today, have passed the billion-dollar mark and are nearly twice the amount reported at this time last year.

Through September 4, the date of today's treasury report, $1,012,973,488 had been spent, more than half of which went for various emergency purposes. Last year on this date expenditures had amounted to $591,768,563 of which only $216,823,646 had been used in pursuance of emergency policies.

Emergency expenditures are approximately two and one-half times what they were last year, and ordinary expenditures have increased from $373,942,917 to $454,103,191.

Roosevelt Confers With Eastman Today About Rail Problems

President to Have Talk With J. J. Pelley Next Week—La Guardia Confident of Relief Plan—Board Is Named For Strike.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt called in Joseph B. Eastman, federal railroad coordinator, today for a conference regarded somewhat significant in view of his meeting with J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, earlier in the week.

Mr. Roosevelt is obviously giving careful attention to the railroad problem, but there is no indication of any immediate move. Pelley has been mentioned either for a federal office or a general post of chief of the railroad executives.

The day was set aside by the President for an automobile trip to the Bear Mountain State Park across the Hudson river.

Eastman was invited to go along on the motor trip as the President combined business and pleasure. The rail co-ordinator has been making a very intensive study of the transportation system for several years, and is the administration authority on the subject.

The President is putting in a busy week. Last night he named a board of inquiry into the textile strike headed by Governor John G. Winant, of New Hampshire, Republican progressive.

Marion Smith, Atlanta attorney, and Raymond Ingersoll, president of the Brooklyn borough, are the other two members of the board authorized to inquire into the strike and to serve as a voluntary committee of arbitration.

The board was instructed to report through the secretary of labor not later than October 1.

Yesterday also marked a renewal by the President of the fight for ratification of the St. Lawrence waterways pact with Canada which was defeated by the last senate.

Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York state power authority, and Ralph Sucher, counsel, conferred with him on this issue, and predicted the treaty would be resubmitted next session and ratified.

Mayor LaGuardia of New York, after a talk with the chief executive, spoke confidently of a "formula" for meeting the unemployment problem in the cities this winter.

General Bingham Dead, Aged 76 Years

Chester, N. S., Sept. 6 (AP)—Brig.-Gen. Theodore Bingham, formerly New York City police commissioner, died at his summer home here today after a long illness.

Death came to the 76-year-old criminal expert while he was vacationing in this seaside resort, as he had done for many years past.

Each year he had come to Chester in the spring and remained until autumn, returning then to the United States.

His health was good when he arrived this spring but he was taken ill shortly thereafter. His condition grew increasingly serious, and he died early today.

Several days before his death, which he expected, General Bingham expressed the wish that he be buried in this village.

Commissioner Brandt To Be The Speaker

The committee in charge of arranging for the parade and celebration to mark the opening of the Boulevard and the new concrete road between Kingston and New Paltz, were in Albany on Wednesday where they saw Commissioner A. W. Brandt, who accepted an invitation to attend the ceremonies and be the principal speaker at the celebration in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium which will follow at the close of the monster parade between Kingston and New Paltz. Commissioner Brandt's five-year-old daughter will cut the ribbon across the Boulevard to allow the parade to proceed. District Engineer Bixby has also accepted an invitation to be present at the ceremonies.

Relief Officials Chart Course of Winter Work For The Unemployed

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP)—Relief officials charted the course of winter work for the needy unemployed today in the face of the fear of private business that it was menacing competition for private production.

They said they wanted the work of people on relief rolls to take care of relief needs.

Construction of low cost homes for destitute families was outlined officially as an important project already started and destined to expand with these other projects to be utilized:

Repairing rundown houses in exchange for their use by persons on relief; making of dresses, towels, bed comforters and mattresses in relief sewing rooms; canneries run by state relief administrations to can vegetables grown in the gardens of relief workers and part of the meat bought by the government from drouth-hit farmers; highway and park improvements, jobless teachers to conduct workers' classes and relief nurseries; destruction of old, unsafe buildings—especially in slum areas—is to be carried on; professional and "white collar" workers used wherever possible, in statistical surveys for the government and clerical positions.

MAJOR KENT COLLAPSES AS TRIAL IS RESUMED.

Fincastle, Va., Sept. 6 (AP).—Major Robert C. Kent, Jr., collapsed, apparently into unconsciousness, as the fourth day of his trial for the kidnaping of Mrs. Mary J. Hastings started here today.

The sheriff was calling the court to order when the defendant toppled suddenly from his chair, striking his head on the floor. R. M. Howells, of Fincastle, rushed forward and picked him up and he was stretched out on a bench with his head resting in the lap of J. C. Caldwell, of Wytheville, a cousin.

Kent's father and wife rushed forward and Mrs. Kent, weeping and trembling, sought to apply some kind of tube to his nose which she said would make his breathe easier.

COAST GUARD CUTTER COMANCHE LAUNCHED

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 6 (AP)—The coast guard cutter Comanche was launched today at the Pusey & Jones Corporation shipyard.

Miss Kathleen Leary, of White Plains, N. Y., daughter of Judge Timothy A. Leary, of the New York State Supreme Court performed the christening ceremony in the presence of a group of coast guard, naval and Washington officials.

The Comanche, the second of three 165-foot coast guard boats being built by the Pusey & Jones Corporation, is expected to be completed about November 15. The keel was laid January 16. It is to be stationed at Stapleton, L. I.

SOVIET-AMERICAN DEBT NEGOTIATIONS COLLAPSE

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP)—Soviet-American negotiations for a settlement of debts and claims totalling more than $500,000,000 virtually collapsed today as a result of another unsatisfactory discussion of settlement terms between Assistant Secretary of State Moore and Alexander Troyanovsky, the Soviet Ambassador.

The State Department issued a communique today in which it revealed that Moore, Troyanovsky and Robert F. Kelley, chief of the eastern European division, held a long conference last night which "was without any satisfactory result whatever."

Brother Held For Murder.

Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 6 (AP)—Sixteen-year old Cerivino Paiva, who authorities said criminally attacked his two young sisters and locked them in an ice box to die of suffocation, faces murder charges today. The youth confessed, District Attorney Neil McAllister said, shortly after the funerals of the girls, Mary, 7, and Mary Ann, 5, yesterday. He was quoted by McAllister as saying he locked his sisters in the ice box, knowing they would die, because they did not wash dishes to suit him.

Model Youths are Held.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Sept. 6 (AP).—Two "model youths" are being sought today for the beating to death with a hammer of Dr. John Schacht, 55-year-old dentist. The youths are Robert Palmquist, 16, and Aplmer Swenson, 19, described as "good boys" and reported to have been the last persons seen with Dr. Schacht after he started out Tuesday night to collect patients' bills.

Italy And France Join In Accord To Prevent German Rearmament

AGAINST NAZIS

French Now Believe That an Entente with Italy is Possible Following Conversations at Rome.

Bari, Italy, Sept. 6 (AP)—Italy and France have reached an accord for common action to prevent the rearmament of Germany, it was said today by French delegates to the Levantine fair.

It was also stated that the nations have come to a complete agreement on the question of Austrian independence, and have pledged themselves to take common action against the Nazis.

French sources said that another phase of the agreement is that Italy renounces her rearmament policy.

It was added that Italy will join France in her fight to keep German armaments at the level prescribed by the treaty of Versailles. It was pointed out, however, that this was not to be interpreted as a renunciation of an Italian impression that the peace treaty could be revised.

The French delegates said the accord was reached August 31, and that as a result a trip by Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, to Rome, is possible. It was said formal announcement of the accord would be made at the end of Barthou's conferences at the Italian capital.

A new declaration "of the necessity of aiding the Danubian countries commercially" also was said to have been reached by Italy and France, but the methods of extending such aid were understood to be open for discussion.

The French, who heretofore felt they could not depend upon Italian friendship, now say they are convinced an entente is possible.

Other questions, such as problems of naval parity, and a conflict of interests in Tunis and Libya, were said to have been left open for self-solution, after reestablishment of a cordial atmosphere.

The accord was said to have been reached after conversations between Premier Mussolini and Ambassador De Chambrun, French envoy to Rome.

Premier Mussolini, escorted to this southern port by warships, opened the celebrated fair and started a vigorous Italian drive to capture Asiatic markets.

A hundred thousand persons cheered enthusiastically and in the harbor three destroyers and a cruiser boomed salutes as Il Duce inaugurated the elaborate exposition.

There are exhibits by manufacturers of numerous nations, but the exposition is largely a show of Italian enterprise in extending trade throughout the Mediterranean basin and the lands east of the Suez.

French Denial.

Rome, Sept. 6 (AP).—The French embassy denied today that an Italo-French agreement had been reached in conversations between Premier Mussolini and Ambassador De Chambrun, as reported in Bari. It was admitted, however, that the two had thoroughly discussed the whole Italo-French situation.

LAST HOPE OF MOONEY ATTENDING FUNERAL FADES

San Francisco, Sept. 6 (AP).—The last hope of Thomas J. Mooney that he might be allowed to attend the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Mary Mooney, faded today after announcement of Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam of California that only a pardon or parole could release him, even temporarily, from San Quentin prison.

"There is no other legal way," the executive informed the American Civil Liberties Union, which asked that Mooney be released under guard from the prison where he is serving a life sentence for the San Francisco 1916 Preparedness Day bombing.

The funeral for Mrs. Mooney will be held in the Civil Auditorium here Saturday.

Ten Dead is Toll Over the Nation As Strike Swings Into Third Day

Battle In South Carolina Between "Flying Squadron" and Workers Leaves Seven Dead—More Than Two Score Are Reported Injured—Gorman Says No Arbitration Until All Mills Are Closed—Van Horn, Sloan Speak.

By The Associated Press

Ten dead, 41 injured and 64 arrests—such was the record today shortly after the general strike in the textile industry had entered its third effective day. Union leaders were exerting pressure through pickets and "flying squadrons" to close mills not yet shut down.

Seven persons were known to be dead in South Carolina. At least six were killed at Honea Path in a battle between workers and a "flying squadron" seeking to prevent the Chiquola mills from opening.

A striker was shot six times and killed at Greenville, S. C., in friction between strikers and police officers guarding the Dunean mills.

A man, said to be a striker, died today at Augusta, Ga., of wounds received yesterday when a trapped policeman shot his way out of a crowd of pickets.

A deputy sheriff and a striker were killed late yesterday in a gun fight between officers and strikers at the Trion cotton mill at Trion, Ga.

Efforts of strike leaders to shut down mills now operating met resistance from employes intent on working.

At Dighton, Mass., a delegation of more than 200 workers from Fall River, Mass., seeking to picket the plant of the Mt. Hope Finishing Co., were turned back by armed guards stationed behind piles of sand on either side of roads entering the town.

The mills of the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Company at Danville, Va., center of Virginia's textile industry as yet unaffected by the strike, opened without incident after an all night vigil by more than a hundred armed police and civilian deputies.

Workers in the Biddeford, Me., plant of the Pepperell Mills numbering 2,000 went to work today apparently unperturbed by reports that a "flying squadron" was planning a demonstration at the plant.

In Pawtucket, R. I., officials of three factories employing about 2,500 men announced suspension of operations in each instance the management announced the shutdown for the protection of its workers from pickets.

Only 100 workers remained on the job at Lowell, Mass., where 3,500 were normally employed. Mills not previously closed were shut down today.

A "flying squadron" of pickets battled police at Warren, R. I., today to free a strike leader from police custody. State Troopers were called to disperse a crowd, said to number 2,000, with clubs and tear gas.

The trouble in the Carolinas today added to the list of injured. Others were injured yesterday in the Carolinas and Georgia.

Arrests were made yesterday in Georgia, Massachusetts, North Carolina and Oregon.

360,000 Idle.

Over 360,000 textile workers were idle today out of the 700,000 normally employed in the industry, an independent survey of the general strike by states indicated.

Authorities Speak.

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)—Peter Van Horn, president of the National Federation of Textiles, Inc., and chairman of the Silk Code Authority, said today, "I admit the strike has spread rapidly during the last twenty-four hours."

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)—George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said today that "all other questions have been replaced by one paramount issue; ten lives have been needlessly sacrificed in conflict over the inalienable right to work."

"Are the men and women of the country free to work?" Sloan asked in a statement. "Will the constituted authorities permit a lawless group to set up invisible super-government, imperiling life, liberty and property, the freedom of speech and the freedom of the average man and woman to go about his daily occupation without fear? ***"

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP).—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, said today the union would agree to arbitration only after all mills in all the divisions of the industry were closed.

Police Investigating Acid Throwing Here

Another Act of Violence Reported at Carpino Home—Hearings In Cases of Organizers Set For September 12.

All was quiet on the battle front this morning and picketing of the Fuller shirt factory on Pine Grove avenue proceeded in an orderly manner following the outbreak of Wednesday morning when residents in the vicinity of the plant complained to police headquarters regarding the disturbance they said was in progress on the picket line which resulted in the arrest of Miss Freida Schwenkmeyer, assistant to Miss Griselda Kuhlman, organizer of the strike, and Miss Josephine Kaczar of Troy, a visiting union organizer, both on charges of disorderly conduct. Both women will have an opportunity to tell their side of the story to the judge in police court on September 12. Another act of violence was also reported to the police late Wednesday when the Carpino family returned to their home, 14 Crane street, to find in their absence that some one had hurled a bottle of muriatic acid through a closed window, breaking the window glass, ruining the shades and leather upholstering in the room, and the sidewalls where the liquid splattered as the bottle broke.

Kaczar Case Adjourned.

Wednesday morning Miss Schwenkmeyer, through her attorney, Andrew J. Cook, pleaded not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct when arraigned before Judge Culloton in police court, and her hearing was set down for September 12, and bail of $25 continued.

This morning Mr. Cook appeared for Miss Kaczar and on her behalf entered a plea of not guilty to the charge, and asked that the hearing be fixed for the same day as that of Miss Schwenkmeyer, which was granted. Bail of $25 was continued until that date.

Miss Kaczar is accused of calling a pedestrain near the Fuller plant a "lousy scab" in a loud tone of voice. Her associate, Miss Schwenkmeyer is charged with using the expression "You yellow scab."

More Police On Duty.

Owing to the disorder on the picket line on Wednesday which resulted in several complaints to the police department, the force of police on duty at the plant was augmented this morning and remained on duty

Benedictine Concert At High School Friday

Generosity of spirit and genuine sympathy are attributed with reason to artists, whose very sensitiveness makes them appreciative of the feelings and needs of others. This is being shown in a marked degree by the great flutist, Georges Barrere; Inez Carroll, pianist; Horace Britt, 'cellist; Henry Michaux, viola player and Albert Yanone, violinist, and especially so by Pierre Henrotte, in the giving freely this wonderful concert tomorrow evening at the Kingston High School auditorium for the benefit of the Benedictine Hospital. Much time and talent must be devoted to rehearsals as well as for the concert, by all, and Mr. Henrotte has devoted an extra amount of time and effort in making arrangements for the concert which he alone can do. Yet all of these musicians consider giving the concert a privilege.

It is also considered a privilege to have such a concert given in Kingston, both as to artists and program.

The concert will begin at 8:30 o'clock, and all are again asked to be in their seats before that hour.

Aluminum Strike Is Declared Over

Pittsburgh, Sept. 6 (AP).—The aluminum strike which has kept 8,796 workers idle for a month was declared over today after a 15-hour conference between union representatives and officials of the Aluminum Company of America.

The National Council of Aluminum Workers, which called out its members August 7, notified them to return to their jobs tomorrow.

The agreement ending the walkout will be formally signed today.

Fred Knight, veteran labor department conciliator, whose untiring efforts were praised by both sides as being largely responsible for the peace, announced the settlement but withheld the terms.

The union demanded an agreement recognizing it as collective bargaining representative of its members; check-off of union dues by the company, and a universal wage scale at plants in New Kensington, Pa., Massena, N. Y., East St. Louis, Ill., and Alcoa, Tenn.

Acid Throwing And Acts Of Pickets Cause Fuller Officials To Withdraw

Miss Kuhlman Says That The Strike Will Continue and Denies Responsibility for the Acid Throwing in Local Homes.

FULLER POSITION

Nothing They Could Submit in Fairness to Themselves or the 425 Loyal Employes.

The round table conference presided over by Miss Weinstock, conciliator of the U. S. Department of Labor, and representatives of the striking pressers, officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and officials of the Fuller shirt factory, where 45 of the pressers are out on strike since August 24, has ended in failure and the strike is still in force. Wednesday afternoon the conference was opened here with both sides represented, and it was adjourned until this morning to give the officials of the company an opportunity to present a proposition for the solution of the strike, but between the adjourned date of the conference some one threw a bottle of muriatic acid into the house of the Carpino family at 14 Crane street, and at the close of this morning's conference a spokesman of the Fuller plant stated that "the incident at the Carpino house coupled with a similar incident at the Spina household on Andrew street and the general demeanor of the pickets in front of the factory had such an effect upon the officials of the company that they felt that there was nothing at this time which they could submit in fairness to themselves or the 425 loyal employes of the company". Miss Kuhlman said today that the strike would continue, and denied responsibility for the acid throwing.

Those at Conference

The conference was presided over by Miss Weinstock, and was attended by Joseph Raskoskie and Mae Eckert of the local union; Jacob S. Potosky, vice president of the Amalgamated; Mr. Cohen who stated he represented the Amalgamated in the city of New York; Mr. Greenstein who said he was manager of the Amalgamated in Pennsylvania, and Miss Griselda Kuhlman, organizer in charge of the strike here. The Fuller concern was represented by Clarence S. Rowland and William T. Fuller, and Mr. Broom of Broom & Neuman, who purchased the output of the factory.

Submits Proposition

Miss Weinstock offered a proposition that the strikers appoint a committee of two members to meet with the plant executives to talk over the demands of the strikers.

The Fuller concern on the other hand stated it had a proposition in mind which they would submit to former employes which they thought might be acceptable to them and might prove a solution of the present problem, but asked that the conference be adjourned to this morning so that the officials of the firm might discuss the proposition in its entirety and get it in concise and understandable form.

That was why the conference was adjourned until this morning with the result as stated.

Fuller Position Explained.

A spokesman for the Fuller factory said at the close of the conference this morning: "Some time on Wednesday afternoon another acid throwing incident took place. A bottle of muriatic acid was thrown through the window of the Carpino residence at 14 Crane street. This family has three of its members working in the Fuller plant at the present time.

"The officials of the Fuller plant do not know who threw the acid in the Spina household which occurred early Wednesday morning or who threw the acid in the Carpino house that afternoon, but it is a fact that the acid was thrown in the houses and homes where present employes of the Fuller plant are living.

"The incident in the Carpino home coupled with the incident at the Spina house together with the general demeanor of the pickets in front of the factory had such an effect upon the officials of the Fuller plant that they felt there was nothing at this time which they could submit in fairness to themselves or the 425 loyal employes of the company. A working agreement was accomplished at the conference.

Local Pickets Not Blamed

The Fuller concern desires to state that while they speak of the action of the pickets it is here in mind the out of town pickets brought here by some one, and do not refer to the former employes who have been on the picket line and who as a whole have conducted themselves in a peaceful and orderly manner.

The Fuller concern state that they have been in business here for the past 42 years and believe they have always enjoyed the esteem and respect of their fellow citizens and do not realize that the incidents which

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

CANAL RECOVERING FROM WORLD SLUMP

President's Trip Stresses Strategic Importance.

Washington.—Opened to the world's shipping traffic 20 years ago, the Panama canal has grown constantly in its importance in national and international affairs of the United States.

Built at a cost of $539,000,000—figures computed by the government bureau of efficiency—the canal suffered at first from landslides and the chaotic commercial situation prevailing during the World war. A period of prosperity followed and then the canal was struck by the world-wide depression.

Last year, however, world trade began to revive, bringing increased business to the "big ditch" and coincidentally the canal's strategic importance was dramatically impressed on the world in May when the entire United States fleet crossed from the Pacific to the Atlantic in one unit and within 48 hours.

Further attention to the canal's importance in relations between the United States, its insular territories and possessions and the international policies of the republic was occasioned when President Roosevelt passed through aboard the U. S. S. Houston en route to Hawaii.

Building Required Ten Years.

Building of the canal by the United States required about ten years. While American money and brains are generally credited with its construction, European labor furnished most of the brawn, and the efficiency of the "Gallegos," Spaniards from the region of Galicia, is still remembered.

In 1906, when work on the dredging was intensified, about 1,200 Spaniards were employed. Their services were so satisfactory that in 1907 and 1908 about 7,000 more were brought to the Isthmus. They were a hardy, vigorous group, trained to severe and continuous labor, and accustomed to meager wages and frugal living.

Most of the contract labor, however, was obtained from the nearby West Indies, which furnished 30,000 laborers. About 2,000 Italians, 1,500 Colombians, 1,100 Greeks and smaller numbers of Frenchmen and Armenians.

While the canal was opened August 15, 1914, it subsequently had to be closed on account of landslides, which delayed its usefulness and greatly increased the cost over advance estimates. On July 20, 1920, it was reopened and during the last 14 years has exerted a tremendous influence on maritime affairs.

Benefits Many Regions.

Many regions profited, but some, especially southern Chile, which formerly profited by trade around Cape Horn, were adversely affected.

Commercial traffic rose until the peak in 1929, then the depression hit the world. Shipping everywhere was reduced and for the first time in many years, some steamers found it cheaper to make the long journey around the Horn, than to pay the tolls through the canal. The low ebb was reached in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933, when only 3,393 ships made the transit, paying tolls of $19,620,459, compared with 4,506 the year before, paying $20,707,856.

Revival began in August 1933, and in the year ended June 30, 1934, the canal showed an increase for the first time, 5,533 ships and tolls of $24,063,789. Principal gains were registered in trade between continents outside North America, offset by other losses.

Commerce between Europe and the west coast of South America improved recently, as did that between the Atlantic coast of the United States and the Pacific coast of South America, and between Europe and Australia. Trade between the Pacific coast of the United States and Europe declined, due to the curtailed oil and grain shipments, usually second largest in the trade of the canal.

Costly Mineral in Dust Pile Company's Problem

Atolia, Calif.—A million and a half dollars piled outside the door, and no way of releasing it—that is the problem which confronts the Atolia Mining company here, operators of one of the world's two tungsten mines.

In 1914, when the war proved tungsten, a very rare mineral used for hardening steel, to be a necessity, it jumped from $6 a unit of 20 pounds to $84 overnight. Previously processing tungsten was almost unknown and the methods very primitive. In the scramble ore valued at more than a million dollars was rushed to a grinder and ground so fine that it was impossible to separate the mineral from the waste. There it has lain to date, looking like any sand heap, a huge pile of potential wealth, but unavailable.

Montana's Youngest Town Given Name "New Deal"

New Deal, Mont.—New Deal, Montana's youngest town, was founded by C. W. Whisennand, a farmer, because the present administration's New Deal made it possible. It already has a population of about 800 persons, nearly all of whom are employed on the nearby $63,000,000 Fort Peck dam being built by the United States government.

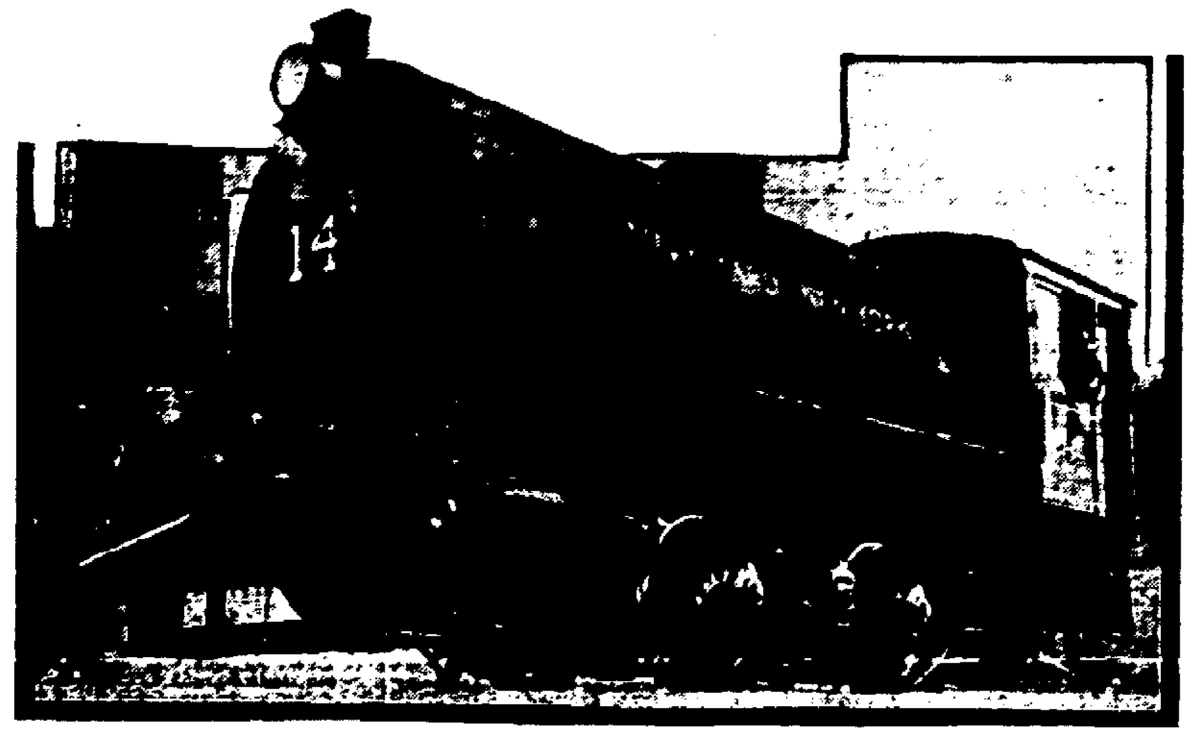

Town Shipped by Freight

Bend, Ore.—Shevlin, central Oregon's movable town, is in a new location ten miles from where it stood for six years. The entire town was loaded on railroad cars and moved on a week-end. Shevlin has a population of about 300.

Here's the Fireless Steam Locomotive

REGARDED at first as a mere whimsy of a fanciful inventor, W. J. Kremer's fireless steam locomotive is being successfully utilized in the Brooklyn Navy yard. This latest product of the machine age dispenses with the conventional fire box, but boasts instead a water tank. Capable of moving at 12 miles per hour, the engine has treble the power of other engines its size.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press).

Tough To Be Poor.

Reading, Pa.—Police pitied a tattered, old man they found sleeping on the park benches. They let him sleep, then raised $2 to buy him shoes.

When again found in the park, he was sent to city hall. There he gave his name as Edward Heffner, 60, no address.

When police searched him they found:

$52.50 in gold.
$330 in paper money.
$100 in liberty bonds.
Two gold watches.
Savings account bank books showing $10,000 in deposits.

Tough To Be Capitalist.

Philadelphia—Charles W. Clemens, building contractor, told the United States district court he has exactly one dollar with which to pay debts of $1,137,064.

The dollar, his voluntary petition in bankruptcy explains, is the value of a single share of stock in Charles W. Clemens, Inc.

He Pays.

Omaha, Neb.—Frank D. Himberger, Fremont, Neb., who holds a mortgage on the farm of Marinus Nelson near Millard, told the district court that Nelson last year obtained a moratorium under which he was to turn over two-fifths of this year's corn crop to Himberger.

But the drouth ruined Nelson's corn crop.

On Himberger's request, the court ordered Nelson to turn over two-fifths of his cornstalks. Himberger said they are worth $6 a ton.

Singer Silenced.

Chestertown, N. Y.—Otto Samollvich radio singer, yawned while visiting friends at their camp in the Adirondack Mountains. He continued yawning for the better part of a day. It was necessary to obtain the services of two physicians to set his dislocated jaw.

Souvenir-Hunters, Maybe.

Ambridge, Pa.—Captain William Pollock, pilot of an Ohio River excursion steamer, believes it isn't safe to leave anything lying around.

He reported to police that someone stole his pilot's license, frame and all, from the cabin of his ship. It has no value to anyone but himself.

Three Pints, Whew!

Wheeling, W. Va.—In the opinion of Jimmy Negley, a man isn't intoxicated until he's down. Arraigned before Judge Charles H. Bonnesen, his defense was:

"Well, Judge, I was still up with three pints down."

The judge sent Jimmy to jail for 10 days.

Ancient Newspapers.

Rome, Sept. 6 (AP).—Roman newspapers republished today stories found on three stone slabs—second century counterparts of the modern newspaper—unearthed at Ostia, ancient Roman seaport, by the archaeologist, Guido Calza. The 1800-year-old "newspapers" devoted columns to sports, church notices and reports of deaths as well as war correspondence and congressional news.

Old English Sheep Dog First Recorded in 1771

The picturesque, affectionate and English sheep dog's tail-less shaggy coat completely hides his entire form even his eyes that peer out from behind the loose hair, tossed freely as he ambles along with his bear-like shuffle, observes a writer in the Los Angeles Times. His hindquarters, almost excessive in profusion of his coat, are rounded like those of the bear. The fore and hind legs of each side, moving forward simultaneously, affects the curious rolling gait peculiar to the breed.

However, when there is business elsewhere and he starts off in his performance, he develops almost incredible speed. Moving almost effortless, he covers ground at a pace quite unsuspected of a dog so compactly built . . . the long hair about his face flying to the wind and parting, to reveal a pair of bright, intelligent and friendly eyes that bespeak his honest countenance. They vary according to the color of the dog . . . very dark being preferred. Nevertheless, in the blue dogs, pearl, china or wall eyes are typical.

With all his beauty, affection and the acquisition of show-ring manners, he is just as sagacious, when pressed into the service of a working dog, as were his progenitors for centuries past. First recorded in a Gainsborough painting in 1771, he, and variants of the breed developed throughout European countries, are known to have been employed since time immemorial as herders and guardians of flocks and herds.

MATTRESSES.

Ohio is in the throes of a great mattress problem. Harry Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, has cotton to give away to the needy. Many of these have neither work to do nor decent beds to sleep on, nor money to buy anything with. Hopkins offered to let unemployed women make mattresses out of the government's extra cotton.

Several states accepted the offer with alacrity. Ohio wasn't so sure it was a good thing. Some commercial mattress factories thought it meant the government was going into the mattress business and they objected. So Governor White said he'd have to think it over and hold some conferences. Hopkins, who knew the people who were going to make and get these mattresses couldn't possibly have bought mattresses for money because they didn't have any money, promptly told Ohio if it didn't want the cotton it didn't have to take it. Plenty of other states would be glad enough to get it for their poor.

A few days will doubtless see this settled, and probably in favor of making the mattresses. In this case the issue seems clear. There is no conflict with established business, but merely a use of something that might otherwise go to waste for the comfort and decency of people who would otherwise have to go on sleeping on old rags.

As a matter of fact, the new mattresses would probably so raise the standards of those who got them that they and their neighbors would want more and better mattresses when they could buy them and the future market would be increased. But in many cases the issue is not so clear. It takes pretty straight thinking to draw the line without politics and with common sense.

APPLIED SOCIAL SCIENCE.

An electrical research director looks into the next century of progress in his own field and finds it full of benefits to the human race. They will be the gifts of applied science, many resulting directly from discovery of the neutron, positron, deuton and triton, which are minute fragments of atoms. The electron, says this authority, brought us the radio, talking pictures and television.

The specific items he foresees are too numerous to list here. They include temperature and humidity control in homes and all public buildings, streamlined trains making 100 to 200 miles an hour, greatly improved night lighting, new altitudes and velocity for flying, complete substitute for visual control making flying and navigation safe in thick weather. There will be home teletype, bringing up-to-the-minute news into the living room, home movies by radio, home television for events of interest. There will be lower power costs with transmission of higher voltage, direct current over a greater economic radius. There will be new materials—improved textiles, synthetic substitutes for wood and metals, new alloys, and so on, giving better heat and sound insulation. Household drudgery will be ended and all routine industrial and clerical jobs will be automatically performed. There will be increased productive efficiency.

One thing he cannot promise—increased intelligence in the use of these things. Unless the benefits of the next century are better distributed among all the people there will be just as serious dislocation of the economic and social machine as there has been in other centuries. Applied social science must go along with applied material science.

THE BEAUTIFUL PRINCESS.

Nothing more pleasant in the way of news has come along for some time than the story of the handsome young prince, George of England, and the beautiful young princess, Marina of Greece. They played at tennis out-doors and at music indoors, and they fell in love in the good, old-fashioned way. George is 31 and Marina 27 and they have known each other for some time [illegible] to explore [illegible] tastes and characters.

[illegible] like any fine young American of good family and education. Which statement is more [illegible] complimentary than George may realize. Marina looks more like the modern Greek of late years than she does like some maiden of classical Athens. She [illegible] a good [illegible]. An artist [illegible] her nose, mouth and chin were tenderly modeled. The observer of her picture feels sure that no matter what comes to her in life she can take it. Moreover she will take it with humor, grace and [illegible].

Your American cousins are for you, prince and princess. May you [illegible] troubled days as come to every human life with courage and patience. May you face the special responsibilities of your high station with strength, tolerance and wisdom—and then may you live happily forever after!

If orchids are most to be desired, then it's orchids for Iowa. Or perhaps Iowa would prefer a large bouquet of her own charming native flowers. A property tax bill for $3,250,000 was proposed for running the state through the last half of 1934. This, Governor Clyde L. Herring has announced, has been cancelled. Other revenues—sales, net income and business franchise taxes—are enough to pay the state's bill for this year and no extra real estate tax assessment will be necessary. It isn't magic that makes red ink give place to black—it's management.

TREAT MIND AND BODY.

A few years ago when a patient consulted a physician he told the physician that he had come to see him about his heart, perhaps about his lungs or kidneys, or about a pain in his head or abdomen. The physician would make an examination of the particular part complained of, and if he found or did not find trouble in that region he simply gave the patient advice regarding the trouble or told him there was no trouble and not to think about it any more.

The physician of today does not do that. He listens carefully to the patient's story about his condition, makes a careful examination of the part and other parts that might affect the condition. If he finds some trouble he explains the nature of it to the patient and the treatment necessary. If there is no real or organic cause for the pain or symptoms complained of he explains to the patient how his daily habits of life, or his emotions may be causing the symptoms and that as there is no cause for worry he should correct the habits or control the emotions.

Dr. Edward Weiss, Philadelphia, at the meeting of the American College of Physicians at Chicago a few months ago stated, "Careful studies indicate that in 35 per cent of the patients who consult a physician the cause is purely emotional; in 35 per cent of the cases the cause is partly emotional; and in only 30 per cent is it purely organic."

Thus as each person enters his office the physician must remember that the patient wouldn't come unless there was some reason for his coming. It is thus up to the physician to study the patient and his story in addition to making a complete examination.

If the physician fails to study his patient, and listen patiently to his story, even a thorough examination may not satisfy the patient that his case has received the attention he feels it deserves.

The thought then is that the patient must be allowed to tell his doctor his whole story, and the doctor in turn must, in addition to giving the patient a thorough examination, explain fully to the patient the effect of his habits and emotions upon the working processes of his body.

GUMPTION

"MA, I need thirty cents."

"Thirty cents? What for?"

"My compass broke and I have to have a new one. I have to make circles, plenty of them, for the geography lesson, and I can't make circles without a compass."

"I'm sorry if you can't but I haven't thirty cents to give you."

"O, yes you have. You can spare it if you want to. I need it."

"I can't spare thirty cents, nor ten cents. You know the conditions as well as I do. You'll have to manage somehow."

"Somehow. You tell me how I can make circles without a compass I'd just like to know."

"I made lots of them. I expect to make lots more too, before I stop. The trouble is you're spoiled. You thing that everything you need has to come out of the store. Only the latest will serve your purpose. When I was your age I had to make things do, use what I had or go without. It looks to me that you children will have to do pretty much the same thing. Learn to help yourselves a little."

"Well, you just show me, that's all. Just show me how I can make circles for a map without a compass. I'd like to see you do it."

"All right. Give me that pile of newspaper there. See this pin? Now, you see this string?"

"Yes. You think you can make circles exact circles with them?"

"I'm sure of it. A pin and a string and a little gumption. Most of all gumption. That's what you need."

"How big are the circles to be?"

"One inch and a half radius."

"Right. There you are. Measure that radius and see if it's exact."

"By George, it is, ma."

"Of course. But there are a few tricks about it you have to learn. I had to find them for myself but I'll pass them along to you as a favor, seeing you're who you are."

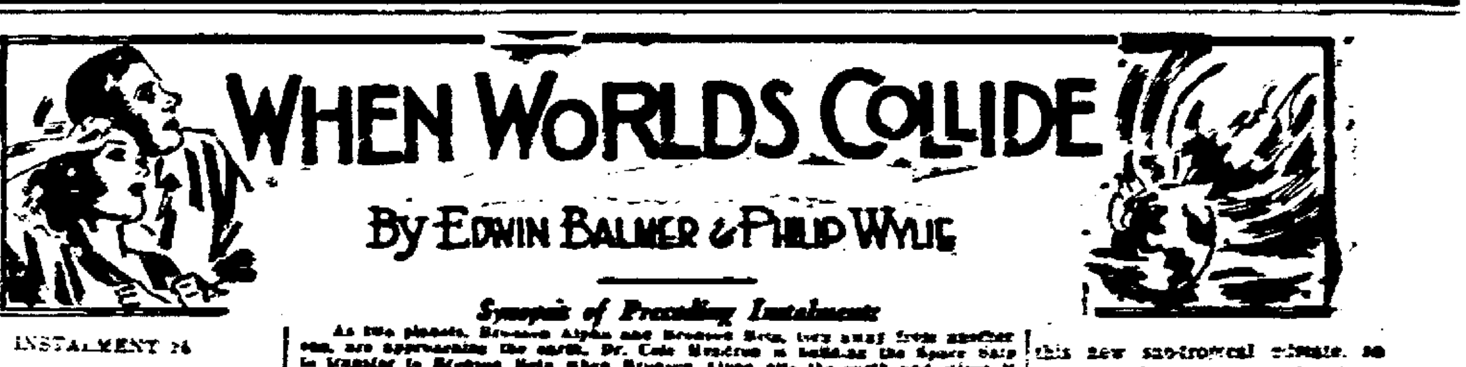

"I knew there was a catch in it. I knew it."

"This string is line, so it won't stretch much. This knot is tricky. It must be easy to open and hard to undo. Watch me tie it. Now of course you measure exactly. That's all! You'd better practice on the newspaper until you get the hang of it."

Gumption, that old fashioned word for an undying human quality ought to come back to its high place in the estimation of this generation, old and young. Finding a way out. Pulling success out of threatened failure. Using imagination and skill and, there is no other word for it, gumption, will tide us all over a hard place.

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments

As two planets, Bronson Alpha and Bronson Beta, torn away from another sun, are approaching the earth, Dr. Cole Hendron is building the Space Ship to transfer to Bronson Beta when Bronson Alpha hits the earth and wipes it out. The world's leading scientists are working under Hendron as members of the League of the Last Days. Their discovery of the planets is confirmed by photographs taken in South Africa by Prof. Bronson which are sped by plane by David Ransdell to Hendron and his daughter Eve, his assistant. Eve and Tony Drake are deeply in love but her father forbids them to marry and thus thwart his plans for them. The first time the Bronson Bodies approach, but pass on, 700-foot tides sweep all the costal regions of the earth and terrific seismic disturbances change the entire surface. Warned by the scientists, the Washington government had moved millions from coast areas to the Mississippi valley but only a fifth of the world's population survives. Hendron's Space Ship cantonment in northern Michigan suffers heavily but work goes on. Hendron is unable to find a metal or an alloy which will withstand the heat and pressure of atomic energy with which the giant rocket is to be driven. Then Ransdell, while on an aerial reconnaissance, discovers such a metal, spewed from the depths of the earth. When a hunger-crazed mob attacks the camp, Hendron calls the survivors into the ship and sends it aloft. The thousands in this horde are wiped out by the searing blasts emitted by the rocket.

INSTALMENT 24

Nearly three weeks after the attack, a census was retaken. There were two hundred and nine uninjured women, one hundred and eighty-two uninjured men. There were about eighty men and women who were expecting eventually to recover. There were more than a hundred who would suffer some disability. Four hundred and ninety-three people had been killed or had died after the conflict.

Work of course was redistributed. More than five months lay ahead of them. The Space Ship could be completed, even with this reduced group, in three weeks.

On one of the unseasonably warm afternoons in December Tony received what he considered afterward the greatest compliment ever paid to him in his life. He was making one of his regular tours of the stockyards when Ransdell overtook him. In all their recent encounters Ransdell had not spoken a hundred words to Tony; but now said almost gruffly, "I'd like to speak to you."

Tony turned and smiled. The South African hesitated and almost blushed. "I'm not talkative," he said bluntly, "but I've been trying to find you alone for weeks." Again he hesitated.

"Yes?"

"That fight you put up—" Ransdell took a huge pocket knife from his flannel shirt and commenced to open and shut its blade nervouly. "That was a damn' fine piece of work, fellow."

"What was yours?" Tony replied, heartily. Ransdell held out his hand. They gripped, and in that grip, the hands of lesser men would have been broken. From that time on, those rivals in love were as blood brothers.

Another general meeting was held in the dining hall. Hendron again took charge.

"The matter which I have to discuss with you," he began, "is one which will come, I am sure, as a distinct surprise. It is the result of my earnest thought and of careful calculations. From the standpoint of realism—and I have learned that all of you are courageous enough to face truths—I am forced to add that my decision has been made possible by the diminution of our numbers.

"All of you know that I founded this village of ours for the purpose of transferring to the planet that will take the place of Earth a company of about one hundred people, with the hope that they might perpetuate our doomed race. It seemed to me that a ship large enough to accommodate such a number might be fabricated and launched by the one thousand persons who were originally assembled here. It is obvious, of course, that the more intelligent and healthy the units of humanity we are able to transfer to the planet, the better the chances for founding a new race will be."

He paused and his eyes roved over the throng. Not a breath was drawn, and not a word was spoken.

"My friends, we are five hundred in number. There is not one man or woman left among us who bears such disability as will prevent him from surviving, if any one may, the trip through space; there is not one but who, if we effect our landing upon Bronson Beta and find it habitable, will be fit to propogate there the human race.

"On the night of the attack, we all of us—and some who since have died—crammed into the Space Ship. We all realize that no such crowding will be possible on the voyage through space; we all realize that much cargo, other than humanity, must be stored on the ship if there is to be any point and purpose in our safe landing upon another planet. One hundred persons remains my estimate of the probable crew and passenger list of the ship which saved us all on that night.

"But I have come to the conclusion, that, by dint of tremendous effort and cooperation, and largely because of the success of the experiments which we have made with Ransdell's metal, it will be possible within the remaining months of time to construct a second and larger vessel which will be capable of removing the entire residual personnel of this camp."

Hendron sat down. No cheer was lifted. As if they had seen the Gorgon's Head, the audience was turned to stone. The sentence imposed by the death-lottery had been lifted. Every man and woman who sat there was free. Every one of them had a chance to live, to fight and to make a new career elsewhere in the star-lit firmament.

They sat silently, many with bowed heads, as if they were engaged in prayer. Then sound came: A man's racking sob, the low hysterical laughter of a woman; after that like the rising of a great wind, the cheers.

Although in Eliot James' diaries the days appeared to be crammed with events, to the dwellers in Hendron's colony, the weeks passed in what seemed like a steady routine, and James had been so busy that he was unable to write voluminously:

"Dec. 4th: Today what we call the keel of the second Space Ship was laid. The first has been popularly named 'Noah's Ark,' and we have offered a prize of five thousand dollars in absolutely worthless bank-notes for anybody who will contrive a name for the second.

"Dec. 7th: Kyto, the Japanese servant whom Tony Drake had had for some years in New York, and of whom he was inordinately fond, walked peacefully into camp. The inscrutable little Jap walked up to Tony, whose back was turned. Kyto's face was like a smiling Buddha's; and fully appreciating the drama of the situation he said in his odd voice: 'With exceedingly humbleness request possibilities to return to former employment.' When Tony spun around I thought he was going to faint. Immediately afterward he began thumping Kyto's back so hard that I personally feared for the Jap's life. But he seems to be wiry; in fact, he must have the constitution of a steel spring, for he has traveled overland more than eight hundred miles in the past two months, and his story, which I am getting out of him piecemeal, is one of fabulous adventure.

"He must have the constitution of a steel spring, for he has traveled overland more than eight hundred miles in the past two months . . . His story is one of fabulous adventure."

"Dec. 19th: I discovered only today that Hendron has used for insulation, between the double walls of the now completed Ark, two thick layers of asbestos and between them, books. The books make reasonably good insulating material, and when we arrive at our future home, if we do not arrive with too hard a blow, we will be provided with an enormous and complete library. Amazing fellow, Hendron.

"Dec. 31st: We had our Christmas dinner last Thursday, and except for the absence of turkey, it was complete, even to plum pudding. The weather continues to be warm, and the gardens which we replanted have flourished under this new sub-tropical climate, so that already we are reaping huge harvests which are being stored in the Space Ships.

"Jan. 16: A flight was made to the mines from which Ransdell's metals have been taken, and in the course of it the plane passed over St. Paul and Minneapolis. Apparently the mobs in those two cities have for the most part either perished or migrated. However, we have not drawn in the outposts stationed around the cantonment after the last attack, and if we should be again attacked in force, we shall not temporize but use the final weapon at once.

"Jan. 20: There was dancing in the hall of the women's dormitory and Ransdell so far overcame his almost animal shyness that he danced twice with Eve. The rivalry between Ransdell and Tony is the most popular subject of discussion among the girls and women, but such a bond has grown between the two men that I know whoever is defeated in the contest, if there is victory or defeat, will take his medicine honorably and generously. I am wondering, however, about that business of victory and defeat. The women here slightly outnumber the men. It will be necessary for them to bear children on the new planet. Variation of our new race will be desirable. Perhaps we will resort in the main to polyandry and abolish, because of biological necessity, all marriage. There are a good many very real love affairs existent already. That is to be expected, when the very flower of young womanhood and the best men of all races are segregated in the wilderness. I myself doubtless reflect the mental attitude of most of the men here. There are a hundred women, I shall say two hundred, and one of whom I would be proud to have as my wife.

"Feb. 17: In a little more than a month it will be time for our departure. As that solemn hour approaches, all of us tend to think back into our lives, rather than forward toward our new lives. Hendron has not hesitated to make it clear that our relatively short jump through space will be dangerous indeed. The ships may not have been contrived properly to withstand what are at best merely theoretical conditions. The cold of outer space may overwhelm us. The sun may beat through the sides of the ship and consume us. The rays which travel through the empty reaches when we thrust ourselves among them clad in the thin cylinders of our Ark may assert a different potency from that experienced under the layer of Earth's atmosphere. Either or both of our two projectiles may collide with a wandering asteroid, in which case the consequences will be similar to those anticipated for the collision of Earth with Bronson Alpha. Hendron assures us only that the ships will fly, and that if they reach the atmosphere of Bronson Beta, it will be possible to land them.

(Copyright, 1934, By Paul Mallon)

Society Item

Washington, Sept. 5—There was a poignant social note buried down in the dispatches from Hyde Park a few days ago. It said:

"Mr. Tugwell will depart soon for Europe, where he plans to visit the major countries and study their problems in relation to parallel ones here."

That is the first anyone around here had heard about the ace brain truster leaving the AAA at a time when the program for next year is being planned. A few of the higher AAA insiders had been expecing something like that, but no previous announcement had been made.

Little general interest was aroused because the famous soft ball pitcher of the New Deal is known to be subject to hay fever and this is the worst time of year in Washington for hay fever sufferers.

Only those closest to the squire of Hyde Park smelled more than pollen behind the trip.

Suggestions

The casual way in which such an important announcement was smoothed over was enough to arouse some speculation. But the suspicious souls had more to go on than that. They recalled, for instance, that President Roosevelt tried to send General Johnson to Europe only a week or so ago.

It is not generally known, but when President Roosevelt offered that suggestion, the general looked him in the eye and said:

"If you want my resignation you can have it." No other reply was made by the general. None was needed.

This is not meant to imply that President Roosevelt is trying to get rid of Mr. Tugwell. The only implication intended is that, when President Roosevelt suggests Europe to anyone now, the favored party has natural cause for alarm.

Prospects

Those who believe they knowwhat President Roosevelt is thinking about have an idea that Prof. Tugwell may not go back to the agriculture department. If he does, it will be only for desk space. There are good reasons for believing that the President hopes to use his good adviser ultimately in a broader capacity, not limiting him to one subject.

Tugwell is an idea man, not an executive. He is a thinker, not an administrative technician. His worth to the administration has been limited by the extent to which he has been saddled with administrative and executive duties as assistant agriculture secretary. Some minor conflicts of administrative opinion have arisen recently inside the agriculture department to accentuate that fact.

The result may be to thrust Prof. Tugwell into a more eminent advisory capacity—but not until after the congressional elections. His European trip will last, at least, that long.

Such an arrangement should satisfy everyone, including Senators Smith and Byrd, and Prof. Tugwell himself.

Reading

The wise men of Wall Street have turned lately to new reading material. They are going extensively now into all the written works of Associate Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court and of Prof. Felix Frankfurter. They are not doing it for pleasure, but in an effort to divine the next steps of the New Deal.

These two are rather generally accepted on the inside as the philosophers behind the New Deal, especially in relation to forthcoming social reform legislation (old age pensions, unemployment insurance, etc.).

At least their writings will be more wholesome for the Wall Street minds than the trash they have been reading about the coming American boom.

Dove

State Secretary Hull and the Soviet ambassador said good-bye as if they meant it when Hull turned down the Soviet debt offer. They were as angry as diplomats allow themselves to be.

M. Troyanovsky took his family and went off into the Virginia hills. Mr. Hull noted that step and also took himself to the Virginia hills, but to an entirely different section, where his path would never cross that of M. Troyanovsky.

In their respective high altitudes, the Yankee trader and the Soviet bargainer have held themselves aloof, but a reaction is beginning to set in. It is being encouraged by whimsical Judge Moore (Mr. Hull's assistant), who has been reading press criticism demanding a settlement instead of a stalemate.

Notes

A leading economist is making confidential speeches around the country to business men, predicting better business. He bases his prediction on charts from all nations of the world, showing improved conditions in every country except France.

The experts on government credit are interpreting the resignation of Budget Director Douglas as meaning the next budget cannot be balanced.

First Moravians

The first Moravian settlement in America was at Savannah, Ga., in 1735. The colony moved to Pennsylvania in 1740. Under the leadership of Count Zinzendorf, the colony, numbering several hundred, throve. They were communists, contributing to and living on a common stock. They were extremely industrious.

Noel Coward's Yacht Wrecked at Corsica

Le Rousse, Corsica, Sept. 6 (AP)—Noel Coward, actor and playwright, was stranded on this Mediterranean island by the wrecking of the yacht Mary, which he had chartered for a cruise.

Coward was on the shore when a sudden storm Saturday drove the little vessel against rocks. As the cabins flooded, members of the crew sprang into the swirling water and fought their way to shore.

All of Coward's clothing, his money and his papers were on the vessel. He walked along the coast for 21 miles, finally reaching this community. He persuaded a hotel proprietor to cable to his friends in London.

Coward's London associates sent him money and arranged to have him enter France without a passport. The playwright plans to leave here today for Nice, from where he will go to Paris.

Names of Leningrad

Peter the Great captured a small Swedish fort, Nyenschantz, in 1703 and renamed it St. Petersburg, building a city there. This name it retained until September, 1914, when the German name was Russianized to Petrograd (from Russian "gorod," meaning "town"). In January, 1924, this was changed to Leningrad to honor Lenin. The name "sadist," derived from that of Count de Sade, who wrote on the subject, is applied to a pervert whose lust is associated with violence and cruelty.

It seems that repealing the dry amendment doesn't do much good in regulating drouth.

IN PROVIDENCE, MO., this couple are known as Mr. and Mrs. James Longstreet Cleveland. In Austria they would be known as the Rudolph Alexander Nicholas Marie Hapsburgs. Although reared in St. Louis orphanages, Mr. Longstreet is said to be the son of Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria and therefore direct heir to the crown. There is [illegible] and mystery concerning him. Countess Maria Larisch, niece of the former Emperor Joseph's wife, is sponsoring a royalist move in his favor. Ralph DePalma, veteran race track driver and holder of hundreds of records, will be the guest of James Millard and Son, local Ford dealers, at their showrooms opposite the central post office this Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. DePalma will speak of his experience as a racing driver, and his talk is not a publicity stunt in any way. He has nothing to sell, but he will bring a wealth of personal recollections as one of the premier automobile drivers of all times. There is no charge and the public is invited to this entertainment feature to hear and see Mr. DePalma.

The famous driver once worked in Kingston as a car tester for the old Allan Kingston automobile concern. It was here that he got his start in racing circles, and he still has numerous friends here. At the present time, he is honorary president of the Italian-American Club of Kingston.

Hay Making All Wrong.

Aberdeen, Scotland, Sept. 6 (AP)—Making hay while the sun shines is poor conservation, the British Association for the Advancement of Science today, leading to inferior food for animals and indirectly to loss of richness in the human diet. The association was told by H. J. Page and Dr. S. J. Watson that sunshine when used to dry hay destroys a "surprisingly large" volume of its food properties.

At Orkney Islands.

Wick, Scotland, Sept. 6 (AP)—Prof. Richard U. Light of Yale and Robert Wilson of New Rochelle, N. Y., sent a wireless message at 11:10 a. m. (6:10 a. m., E. S. T.) today from the Faroe Islands saying they were flying to Kirkwell, Orkney Islands, where they expected to land at 12:15 p. m. (7:15 a. m. E. S. T.)

Grasshoppers Shed Skins

All the most injurious grasshoppers shed their skins on an average of five times during the course of their development. The grasshopper's skin does not keep pace with the growth of the insect, so this pest goes through the several processes of molting by hanging upside down attatched by its legs to some support and slowly wriggling out of its old coat.

Hideout Is Found

Toronto, Sept. 6 (AP)—A high police authority revealed today that the "hideout" where John S. Labatt, London, Ont., brewer, was held captive by kidnapers recently has been discovered ten miles northwest of Bracebridge in the Muskoka Lake region. The hideout was in a heavily wooded area and Labatt, who was kidnaped August 14 near Sarnia, told detectives after his release that he had been held in a place smelling strongly of pine. The police said they had not yet made any arrests.

Work at Court House Progressing

Improvements to the second floor of the court house are progressing and the spirit of [illegible] down to the sheriff's office Wednesday. The old bench and clerk's desk which was formerly in the court room has been [illegible] replaced by a new judge's bench and desk. The old furniture was removed and the question of what to do with them faced the sheriff. This problem did not take Sheriff Saxe long to solve. For some time there had been a lack of proper desk room where the sheriff's [illegible] work in [illegible] records [illegible] report [illegible] plaints had to be cared for whatever desk room was available. But from now on there will be a regular "headquarters" desk where such work will be done.

The abandoned judge's bench was installed in the sheriff's office alongside the desk of Under Sheriff J. W. Foster and will be used as a "headquarters" desk where complaints may be registered and where reports can be made out by the office employes without need of disturbing the routine of the office. The abandoned clerk's desk was immediately moved to the small office adjoining the county judge's office where A. King, pistol bureau official, put that piece of furniture to good use. Not only do the furnishings removed from the old court room serve a good purpose but they add a dressed-up appearance to the offices where installed.

Two Identified By Police as Fugitives

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—A man and a woman were seized in a hotel room here today and positively identified as being among the fugitives from a Philadelphia Theatre holdup last week in which a police officer was fatally shot.

Walter Mika, 24, of Philadelphia, confessed the robbery and the murder of Patrolman William C. Wilson in front of the Industrial Trust Company in Philadelphia last Monday night. His wife, the former Diana Fetcenko, 22, of Yonkers, whose favors last year caused a murder near here for which a Yonkers youth is serving 20 years in Sing Sing prison, was arrested with him as a material witness.

Police Chief Edward J. Quirk led officers and Detectives Vincent Weston and James Lennon of the Third District, Philadelphia, in a raid today on a room in the Plaza Hotel. Mike and his bride of four months were seized in bed before they had scarcely awakened.

After an hour of questioning Chief Quirk broke down Mika, who had denied participating in the holdup, and he confessed both the holdup and the shooting of Patrolman Wilson, it was announced at police headquarters. Mika agreed to waive extradition and after he has signed his confession here Detectives Weston and Lennon will take him to New York to get a late afternoon train for Philadelphia.

The Name "Adirondack"

The name "Adirondack" is taken from the Indian tongue and means "Tree-Eaters," a term the Iroquois derisively applied to their enemies the Algonquins who were frequently forced to subsist upon bark and roots under the duress of an Iroquois siege.

"More Than All The Colleges..."

ROBERT A. MILLIKAN, Nobel prize-winner and one of the world's most famous scientists, recently declared that "Gas station attendants have improved the manner and the courtesy and the consideration of the American public more than all the colleges in the country!" These days the modern service station man does everything from washing the young son's hands to carefully checking over the family car.

Several Towns With Low Fire Costs

Albany, Sept. 6.—There are several towns within the limits of the so-called "fire towns" of New York that have enviable records on costs of forest fire suppression over the past 20 years, a search of the records of the Conservation Department reveals. Six of there towns have during that period been forced to pay only a few hundred dollars each and in one instance, the town of Morehouse in Hamilton county, the total expenditure has been less than one hundred dollars.

The remaining five towns with low fire costs are Lexington in Greene county, Hardenburgh and Denning in Ulster, Remsen in Oneida and Russia in Herkimer.

Various reasons have been ascribed for this low cost. In Denning, Hardenburgh and Lexington, adjoining towns, officials feel that almost 100 per cent cooperation from the residents in the matter of observance of all the provisions of the Conservation Law is chiefly responsible. Other factors are that these towns are off the main roads so that careless tourists and automobilists have no opportunity to leave behind them lighted smoking materials of camp fires and the wood growths are of the hardwood variety.

Remsen and Russia, in Oneida and Herkimer counties respectively, also have similar conditions as prevail in the towns in the Catskill district. Morehouse, a sparsely populated town in Hamilton county, having only 85 inhabitants according to the records, is an area that has had fires in the past, but the second growth now there is of the hardwood variety. In addition it is in the really wild, wooded section of the county, where only real woodsmen or hardy fishermen venture.

Sixty-three million tire miles a distance equal to 2,[illegible] times around the earth or [illegible] trips to the moon and back, will be covered by the U. S. Rubber [illegible] this year in testing tires. "We have to use astronomical distances to picture the enormous amount of testing to which U. That the Buick mould is cast in public opinion was emphasized today in results of a current motor car style survey conducted by the General Motors Customer Research Staff in which Buick was voted the "best looking" car in its price class. The impartial survey was conducted among thousands of motorists throughout the country on the basis of individual taste in motor car design. Buick received 27.7 per cent of all votes cast, more than three times the average of the other 1[illegible] cars in the price class covered.

Henry Ford is today in full swing on the final move that will give his industry an absolutely independent supply of the 36 different kinds of special steels which it requires. The move involves the building of two huge new steel mills, installation of a vast amount of special machinery and sufficient additions to his present power equipment to drive the new mill. The construction will require eight months to complete and will cost between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000. When the new mills are ready, Ford can produce 3,000 cars a day without buying a pound of steel in the market. He will have attained a position, so far as steel supply is concerned, achieved by no other private manufacturer in the world. All other great manufacturers using steel are dependent on outside producers—even the great European and American ordnance and railroad equipment manufacturers.

In the face of a general downward trend of the industry's sales curve, Chrysler Sales Corporation dealers reported a gain in retail deliveries of Chrysler and Plymouth cars for the week ending August 13. Reports show that 660 Chryslers and 2,663 Plymouths, a grand total of 3,323 units, were delivered at retail in this week, which is above the record for the preceding week and also for the corresponding week of 1933. The figure is more than three times that of the corresponding week of 1932. These totals are in addition to the large number of Plymouths delivered by the Dodge and DeSoto dealer organizations.

ENGINES "Breathe" LIKE HUMANS!

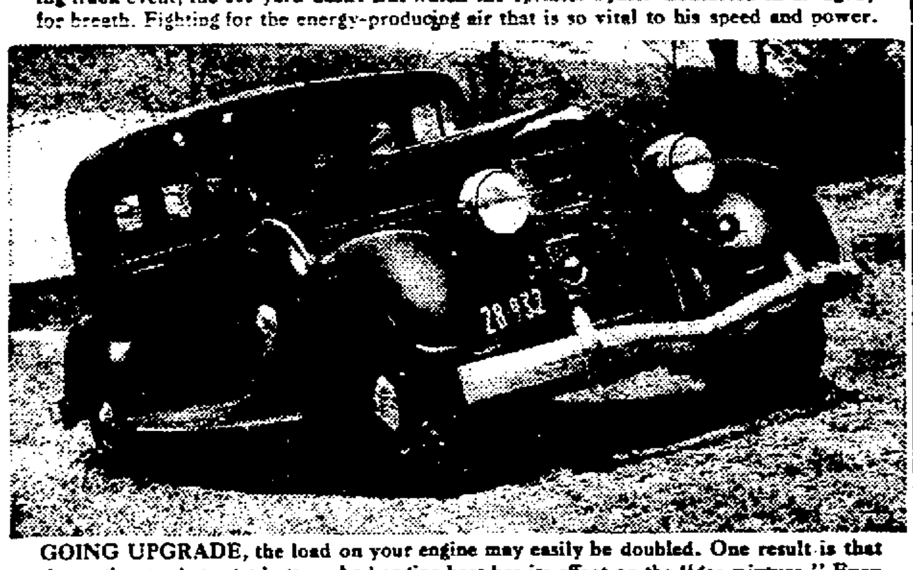

For Quick Starts . . . use this Gasoline that mixes better with AIR!

POUND, POUND, POUND! The racing feet come tearing down the track in that thrilling track event, the 100-yard dash! But watch the sprinter's face. Contorted in an agony for breath. Fighting for the energy-producing air that is so vital to his speed and power.

SAMPLE AFTER SAMPLE comes from the refinery. One check after another has to be made. This Socony-Vacuum scientist keeps an eagle eye on each test. Socony Mobilgas gets its ability to mix better with air through a careful balance of many gasoline qualities.

GOING UPGRADE, the load on your engine may easily be doubled. One result is that the engine tends to get hotter. And engine heat has its effect on the "gas mixture." Even under such severe conditions, Socony Mobilgas gives you a better mixture, fully charged.

"RUNNING LIKE A TOP." There's a real satisfaction in driving a car that is always eager to go—takes all the hills with ease—and makes the gasoline count! That's one result of Climatic Control. No matter what the weather, every drop works. That means economy.

YES—YOUR ENGINE "BREATHES" like you do—and for the same reason! Your body turns oxygen into power—and so does your car!

That's why your car has a carbureter. The engine draws in air. The carbureter jets send out a fine spray of gasoline. The two mix—and this makes the powerful "gas" that gives life to your car!

You don't have to be an engineer to see that gasoline can be wasted and power lost—if your fuel does not mix properly with air. And you know yourself that weather changes constantly.

That's the reason Socony Mobilgas has Climatic Control. This exclusive feature makes it mix better with air.

What does that mean? No power loss from daily weather changes. Power you can always count on. Quick starting—fast pick-up—all of the time.

That's what you want from a gasoline. So why not try Socony Mobilgas? Just look for the Flying Red Horse.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

"It's Like Old Times to Have Our Telephone Back"

—to save myself going to the telephone booth down the street, or bothering neighbors.

—to be able to call a friend when I'm lonesome.

—to be able to have my friends call me.

—to save shopping trips in bad weather—and order by telephone instead.

—to know I can call help—firemen, police, doctor—quickly in an emergency.

THESE are some of the reasons why so many people say they just can not get along without their telephone. A telephone at home can do so much for you and everyone else in your family. Yet, to have this comfort, convenience and protection costs so little—a few cents daily, that's all.

If you've been doing without a telephone, our Business Office will be glad to take your order. Or you can give it to any telephone employee.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "The Notorious Sophie Lang" and "Uncertain Lady." The first picture on this double feature program is a comedy-drama concerning two crooks who, jealous of each others exploits and fame, try to prove to each other and to the police officials their superiority in the art of making a living by their wits. Gertrude Michael and Paul Cavanaugh as the crooks do well with their roles. Alison Skipworth and Leon Errol furnish some fine comedy. The second feature is a comedy treatment of the old love triangle. Edward Everett Horton is excellent in the part of the erring husband whose wife is willing to divorce him if he supplies her with another husband. What happens when he does makes a very entertaining comedy.

Orpheum: "Blood Money" and "Hell Bent For Love." The first is a picture of gangs and gangsters with George Bancroft as the big bad man of the story, who falls in love with pretty Frances Dee and deserts his underworld pals. Fairly exciting entertainment. The second picture is another thriller of the type which is Tim McCoy's specialty.

Broadway: "Chained." After their successes together in several other dramatic offerings, Joan Crawford and Clark Gable are co-starred again in another modern story of love and its difficulties. Miss Crawford plays the role of a beautiful Manhattan play girl who would marry a man but for the fact that a wife stands in the way. She leaves on a boat trip, and while abroad, meets a handsome young fellow who falls in love with her. On her return from the voyage, her heart filled with love for her boat companion, her former lover tells her he has divorced his wife and wedding bells may chime for them any time. In order not to make him feel sad, she marries him, but trouble and heartaches come when the other gentleman makes his appearance. Otto Kruger and Stuart Erwin are in the supporting cast.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: "She Learned About Sailors." This little Alice Faye, who understands the art of getting a song successfully across to a motion picture audience, is at her best in this rowdy but clean show that describes the adventures of a sailor boy in his search for romance. In a Shanghai club one evening, this boy tries to get overly friendly with a cabaret singer, played by Miss Faye. Only after a number of complicated situations do the couple find understanding and happiness. Lew Ayres is good as the sailor in one of the best characterizations he has given in some little time, and the comedy team of Mitchell and Durant is screamingly funny in an original and entertaining way. Harry Green is also well cast in a comedy part. Light entertainment, well directed and acted, with Alice Faye showing the way with another brilliant performance on her way to stardom.

Orpheum: "Thirty Day Princess" and "West of the Divide." A down and out actress, who resembles a princess, subs for her when the princess is taken ill on a good will tour of America, and gets into all kinds of scrapes before the final curtain. Clarence Buddington Kelland wrote the story and Sylvia Sidney and Gary Grant are co-featured in the leading roles. "West of the Divide" is an above average story of the building of the west with John Wayne in the leading part.

Broadway: Same.

What an urge for smart new clothes seems to course through us when the first fall days are here.

This season you'll be especially attracted to the gay new metal-shot fabrics.

A delightful dark green wool with gold threads made this fascinating little model. The shoulder bow and belt are matching green velvet.

It has the easy-to-sew raglan shoulders and a straight slim two-piece skirt that joins the bodice under the belt. It's child's play to copy it.

Crepe silk, satin crepe, rayon novelties, etc., are also smart for it.

Style No. 3206 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 39-inch material with ¼ yard 39-inch contrasting.

Send TEN CENTS (10c) in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Write plainly NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE YOU WISH.

A House-Dress for The Larger Woman

1436-B

Here is a perfect dress for the matronly type of figure—those large women who require reserve amounts of fulness, concealed within pleats, in order to eliminate strain when they are doing their housework. It is one of those trim, smart dresses made of printed percale. Its only departure from classic channels lies in the inverted box pleats which are strategically placed where they will function automatically with motion demands.

This is a dress to be put on in the morning and worn through the greater part of the day. All women agree the fewer the seams the easier the ironing—hence, the simple cut of the design. The trimming feature has been reduced to the simplicity of three bows down the front. Collar complications are conspicuous by their absence. Instead, we have just a plain binding for a finish. House-dresses, for the coming season, have definite and rigid standards, which can be approached only by designers who understand what simplicity really is. Materials must be smooth-finished and respond to quick tub-bings—also, they must be attractive in texture, weight and color scheme. It is the part of wisdom to stick to one basic color for both aprons and dresses—varying them with an occasional change into white for variety's sake. The fall fabrics remain similar to those of summer—gingham, poplin, percale, cotton broadcloth and seersucker. These continue to be available in an enchanting array of colors and designs which it is safe to purchase now with a view to wearing them through winter into spring.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1436-B can be procured for 15 cents. Fill in the coupon accompanying this story and mail to the address given in it.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1436-B is designed in sizes 34 to 50. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 36 inch material.

Every Barbara Bell Pattern has an illustrated instruction guide which is easy to follow.

MENU FOR TODAY

Menu for Friday, September 7.

Breakfast.

Sliced pears, wheat cereal, top milk, fish cakes, egg sauce, corn cake, coffee.

Luncheon.

Creamed salmon, toast, lettuce, French dressing, tarts, tea.

Dinner.

Tomato consomme, baked stuffed haddock, egg sauce, mashed potatoes, baked stuffed tomatoes, vegetable salad, French dressing, fruit tapioca, pudding, coffee.

Fish Cakes, egg sauce.

One and one-half cups codfish shredded; put to soak in warm water; 1½ cups (or little more) of potatoes cut in dice; drain water from codfish, put with the diced potato and cook about 20 minutes, or till potatoes are soft. Drain and mash; add tablespoon butter, a dash of pepper, 1 well-beaten egg; flour hands and form into cakes. Do not press hard on cakes or they will be soggy. Fry in deep fat. Serve with hot egg sauce.

Creamed Salmon

Remove salmon from can, place it in a colander and wash under running water or scald with boiling water. Break into small pieces, discarding all fat and bones, stir into hot cream sauce, bring all to a boil, and serve in patty cases or on toasted bread or crackers.

Sauce—One tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, dash red pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ teaspoon salt. Melt butter, being careful not to brown it; add flour, stir until smooth, then add milk gradually, stirring constantly until it boils. Season and use at once.

Fruit Tapioca Pudding

Put ¼ cup pearl tapioca and ½ teaspoon salt in double boiler. Pour on 1 quart boiling water. Stir it often and cook over boiling water about an hour or until soft. Add 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 cup jelly or preserves. The amount of sugar will vary with the amount of sugar in preserves. Apple sauce, stewed prunes, stewed rhubarb or any remnants of fruit may be used. Add the juice of 1 lemon if it lacks flavor. This may be molded and served cold, or after fruit is added, bake 20 minutes and serve hot. If uncooked fruit is added or used, bake until fruit is tender. Cream or milk is the best sauce for this.

Democrats to Select Convention Site

Meeting of Democratic State Committee Will Be Held in New York City Today—Buffalo or Rochester Favored.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—With the time for the state nominating conventions only three weeks away, Democratic and Republican leaders swung into action today to select sites for the conventions, choose their "keynote" speakers, and work out other details.

The first concrete move toward the conventions was a meeting of the Democratic state committee in New York city today. The committee will determine whether the party will gather at Buffalo or Rochester to nominate its candidates.

Other cities have invited the convention, but Postmaster General James A. Farley and other party leaders have indicated that the choice lies between these two. Last minute reports were that Buffalo was favored.

The Republicans have made it known that they will call their state committee together within the next few days to plan their convention. Syracuse, Lake Placid and White Plains were reported to be commanding the strongest support.

The state committees also will decide on what days their respective conventions will be held. There is not much latitude as to the dates, since both must be held between September 26 and October 2.

Both parties were said to favor September 26 and 27, which fall on Wednesday and Thursday. It was considered possible that they might meet simultaneously as they did two years ago.

The meeting of the Democratic committee today was concerned largely with minor details, with leaders virtually agreed that the party will renominate the entire 1932 ticket, headed by Governor Lehman.

Besides the selection of the convention city, however, there was at least one other important question to be taken up—selection of the "keynote" speaker. This is considered particularly important because of the significance it may have in determining the issues of the campaign.

So far neither Governor Lehman nor Postmaster General Farley has indicated whether the campaign would be fought on state issues or would be broadened to include the "new deal" activities.

Among those mentioned as the "keynoter" is United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, who has been closely identified with the "new deal" legislation and its operation. If he is chosen, political observers feel, it will be an indication that the Roosevelt administration is to be the central issue of the campaign.

The Republicans, still without a candidate for the governorship, have more to worry about at present than the Democrats. They not only have to select their ticket, but they have to patch up the rift between Chairman W. Kingsland Macy and Representative James W. Wadsworth over the "new deal" question.

Wadsworth, most prominent among the gubernatorial possibilities, wants to make the campaign largely anti-Roosevelt, but Macy wants to concentrate on state issues.

Although Wadsworth insists that he is a candidate for congress and not for the governorship, a strong move continues to spread through the state to "draft" him. It is reported that Macy, still hopeful that Samuel Seabury might be nominated, is now swinging toward Judge Daniel J. Kenefick of Buffalo. Another candidate is George U. Harvey, borough president of Queens.

Mr. Rossman and Mr. Germond were callers in this place early in the week.

Rotary Club Enjoys An Unusual Program

An unusually fine Rotary program, under the guidance of Arthur Colligan, took place in the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday at noon when the members and guests of the local club were entertained by George LaDue, director of the art department of the Central Hudson Corporation. Mr. LaDue ocered a series of impromptu crayon sketches by asking several of the members to draw a number of lines and he would then complete the lines into a picture.

Alton Shader also entertained the gathering with several vocal solos. Mr. Shader is a talented singer and instructor, and has until recently been teaching and directing music in Ohio. He sang over station WGY last Friday, and will appear again over that same station on September 20, from 7:45 to 8 p. m. He will be aided by the WGY studio ensemble.

Because a bee flew across a highway just as an automobile was passing resulted recently in the interruption of telephone service for several hours in many homes near Newton, N. J. The bee swooped down upon the driver and stung him on the back of the neck. The shock caused him to lose control of his car, which crashed into a telephone pole, cutting it off at the base and tearing down a number of telephone wires.

throughout the day. Sergeant Pfister was in charge of the detail of police.

Walked in Single File.

Complaints had been made to the police that owing to the fact that the striking pressers and visiting agitators from out of town walked two abreast on the sidewalk others who desired to use the sidewalk had to step off to one side in order to pass. This resulted in the police enforcing the rule that the pickets must walk in single file, which order was complied with. After all of the employes at the plant had entered the building the pickets were allowed to return, walking two abreast.

Acid Throwing Investigated.

The police department are making a thorough investigation of the acid throwing in which fortunately no one was injured. The first bottle was hurled about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Spina house at 65 Andrew street, while the members of the family were asleep. They were awakened by the sound of breaking glass.

Neighbors in the vicinity of the Carpino home on Crane street reported to the police that about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon a car drove up in front of the residence and a man alighted and went up on the porch of the house. He remained but a brief time and then returned to the car which was driven away.

Members of both the Spina and Carpino families are employed at the Fuller plant and did not strike.

Trying to Settle Strike.

Wednesday afternoon a conference was held between the plant officials, the strikers and officers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and after some discussion the conference was adjourned until this morning. The plant was represented by Clarence S. Rowland and William T. Fuller, while the strikers were represented by Jacob S. Potosky, vice-president of the Amalgamated; Joseph Raskoskie, chairman of the local strikers; Mae Eckert of the pressers' committee, and Miss Griselda Kuhlman in charge of the strike. Mr. Broom of Broom and Neuman, who purchase the shirts made at the plant, was also present at the conference, which was held in the offices of Cashin & Ewig, attorneys for the Fuller plant.

Ulster-Greene Scouts To Resume Activities

Discuss Plans For The Annual Finance Campaign At Meeting Wednesday Of Executive Board.

With the return of Scout Executive Wright from his vacation Scout activities in the Ulster-Greene Council are being resumed with new vigor.

Wednesday night the monthly dinner meeting of the executive board of the council was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel. There was a good attendance, every district being represented with the exception of the Rondout valley district. A general review of the summer's work, especially Camp Half-Moon activities, showed an increase over 1933. The registration as of September 1 was reported to be the largest in the history of the Council, there being a total of 755 scouts registered in the two counties.

The main business taken up Wednesday evening was the discussion of plans for the annual finance campaign of the Council. It was decided to ask for the same amount as last year and goals for the different communities will be approximately the same as those set for 1933. The campaign will be divided into two sections, one for the council territory outside the city of Kingston and one for the city. It was decided to run the outside campaign from October 8 to 15. In the city the campaign will start on October 19 and end October 26.

Executive Wright reported that five new troops were in process of organization in the city of Kingston. It is expected that two of them, those sponsored by St. James M. E. Church and St. John's Episcopal Church, will be installed some time this month.

The quarterly meetings of the scout leaders in the various areas into which the council is divided will be held this week and next, starting with the meeting of the Mountain Area, which will be held at Prattsville tonight. Friday night the officials of the Northern Area will meet at Cairo. Meetings scheduled for next week are:

Monday—Saugerties Area at Saugerties.

Tuesday—Rondout Valley, at Ellenville.

Thursday—Southern, at Highland.

Friday—Western, at Phoenicia.

Provision Dealers Elected Officers

The Ulster County Provision Dealers' Association held its first annual meeting and election of officers at the new headquarters of the organization, 21 Grand street, this week. The gathering was an enthusiastic one, showing much interest in the affairs of the association which enjoyed a successful first year. The program for the ensuing year bodes of a bigger and better organization, if such be possible.

Last year's officers were re-elected also the board of directors, with three new members being chosen for places on the latter governing body. The officials are:

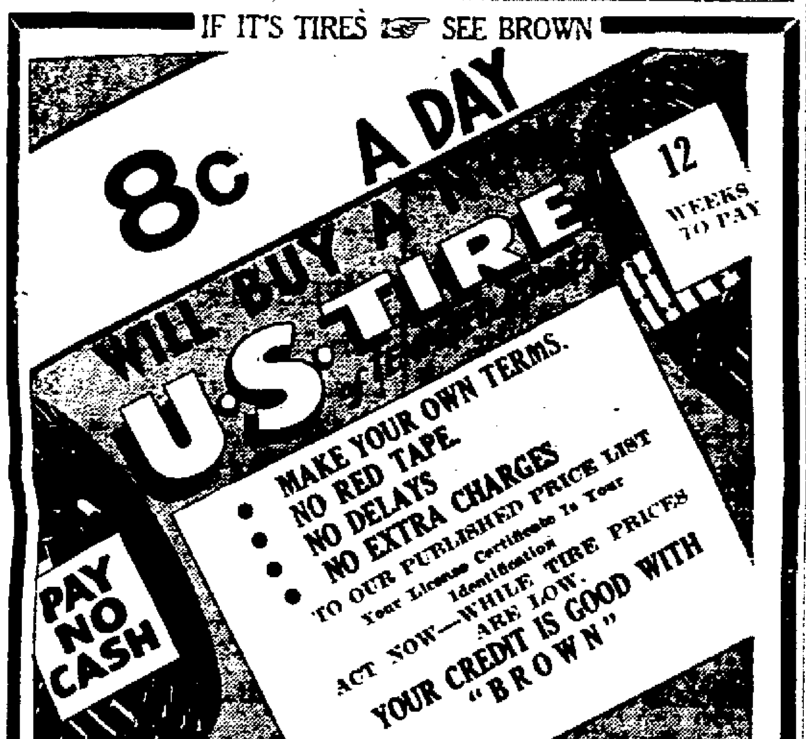

C. T. Bennett, president; M. Weishaupt, vice president; C. R. Everett, treasurer; B. Suskind, secretary; directors, Max Abel, George Dawkins, Harry Jump, Dave Wetterhahn, A. D. Rose, A. E. Vetoskie, and Herman Roosa, Abe Garber and William P. Lehr, new members.

CHARGES INTERFERENCE WITH HIS PRIVATE BUSINESS

Editor, Freeman.
Sir:

From the viewpoint of business recovery it would be interesting to have County Leader Schirick explain without evasion, the reason for political interference with private and business affairs locally. Now that the party wants to elect a congressman senator and assemblyman and election is near, this is the proper time for the public to smoke out and retire from public life permanently the local element who feel they can tell the public that they will do anything they like regardless of whether it is good politics or sound business.

Since when did we pass over to Schirick or any other political agency in Ulster the right to interfere with our personal and business affairs or to interfere with the steady delivery of U. S. Mails? The fact that these small town politicians must live off the public payroll is no reason why we should be put to unnecessary expense simply to create a job. To the writer it means a layout of $100 cold cash everytime a change of P. O. address is made, for printing, postage, advertising, etc., as well as rendering useless all previous printing. In view of present conditions where will the money come from? Certainly the local politicians are not worrying who goes broke as long as they can satisfy their itching palms? Schirick's outfit does not warrant support of businessmen if the create confusion and delay in delivering of U. S. Mails with the abolishment of Binnewater P. O. in December 1933 and then Kingston R. 1, then Kingston R. 3 and now a new Binnewater P. O. and R. F. D. service, with mail both ends, its time to clean out this element entirely. The R. F. D. service is as good as could be had. Why create a situation whereby frequent changes of P. O. addresses of legitimate business men who spent money advertising are placed in category of fly by nights by out of town manufacturers, etc., who are not in a position to know that while we remain in same place only our P. O. address is being jockyed around so as to create a P. O. that cannot produce revenue enough to justify its existence. Schirick will learn shortly from sources other than mine what the sentiment here is on his action and refusal to take local voters decision. Add to this also the expense involved by publishers, etc. in changing their address records and the confusion and delay in delivery of publications. Perhaps these politicians who never were out in front to develop Binnewater in past 10 years or who ever had courage or backbone to co-operate with writer in his endeavor to secure good government or improvements necessary for development and who are now claiming to want to develop this section would be willing to name publicly those who claim they want the P. O. re-established, and why they did not provide revenue before to justify its existence? The matter to me is far from a political issue but one that interferes, contrary to law, with my private and business affairs. Perhaps they think we are all dumb here and not capable of knowing what we want? The added expense of R. F. D. service is about $35 a year for salary, of carrier compared to what local P. O. would cost. Which is economy.

It would also be a good thing for Democratic party and NRA in general to relieve John J. Duffy of his place on local town committee and let him confine his activities to NRA along with any others who feel they are to decide on how they want our mail operated. I regret that it becomes necessary for me to make a public statement, but public welfare is more important than creation of useless jobs to satisfy hungry officeseekers. I'll leave the answer to the voters of Ulster on election day.

PETER DISCOVERS LINNET

IT DIDN'T take Peter Rabbit long to find the sweet singer whose happy trills had caught his attention. He spied him sitting on the tip-top of a fir tree in Farmer Brown's yard. Peter didn't dare go over there for already it was broad daylight. But he didn't have to, for the sweet singer flew over in the Old Orchard and alighted just over Peter's head. "Hello, Peter!" he cried.

"Hello, Linnet!" cried Peter. "I was wondering who it could be who was singing like that. I ought to have known, but you see it is so long since I've heard you sing that I couldn't remember your song. I'm so glad you came over here for I'm just dying to talk to somebody."

Linnet the Purple Finch, for this is who it was, laughed right out. "I see you're still the same old Peter," said he. "I suppose you're just as full of curiosity as ever, and just as full of questions. Well, here I am, so what shall we talk about"

"You," replied Peter promptly. "Lately I've found out so many surprising things about my feathered friends that I want to know more. I'm trying to get it straight in my head who is related to who, and I've found out some things which have begun to make me feel that I know very little about my feathered neighbors. It's getting so that I don't even dare guess who a person's relatives are. If you please, Linnet, what family do you belong to?"

Linnet flew down a little nearer to Peter. "Look me over, Peter," said he with twinkling eyes. "Look me over and see if you can't tell for yourself."

Peter stared solemnly at Linnet. He saw a bird of sparrow size whose entire body was a rose red, brightest on the head, darkest on the back, and palest on the breast. Underneath he was whitish. His wings and tail were brownish, the outer parts of the feathers edged with rose red. His bill was short and stout. Before Peter could reply, Mrs. Linnet appeared. There wasn't so much as a touch of that beautiful rose red about her. Her grayish brown back was streaked with black. Her white breast and sides were spotted with streaks of brown. Had she not been with Linnet, Peter certainly would have taken her for a sparrow. She looked so much like one that he ventured to say, "I guess you belong to the Sparrow family."

"That's pretty close, Peter, that's pretty close," declared Linnet. "We belong to the Finch branch of the family, which makes the Sparrows own cousins, but they never can mistake me. There is nobody else my size with a rose red coat like mine. Hello! Here comes Cousin Chicoree."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)—Financial markets alike were again a little brighter today although scattered storm clouds tended to restrain any public enthusiasm in most trading departments.

Stocks steadied after weathering some first-hour profit taking and another upturn of a cent or more a bushel in wheat gave some courage to proponents of a higher price structure. U. S. government securities also showed resistance to selling pressure for the first time in several days and the dollar resumed its advance in relation to leading European currencies. Cotton and other commodities pushed up moderately in the face of realizing.

Shares of Alaska Juneau sagged, along with the other metals, following an estimate that August profits of this mining company were under those of the corresponding month last year. U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and Howe Sound, however, later transformed early losses into small gains. Union Pacific got up a point and the other rails were slightly higher. Armour of Illinois (common) was unusually active at a fractional advance. American Telephone, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, du Pont and National Distillers were fairly firm. Many stocks were virtually unchanged.

Men's Federation Hold Meeting to Plan for The Winter Activities Here

Membership Has Been Greatly Increased by Applications From Kingston, Hurley and Woodstock —Banquet for Soft Baseball League.

The Federated Men's Clubs of Kingston and vicinity sent their representatives to discuss the results of the summer activities and the program for the coming season at a meeting held in the social rooms of the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. President Edail Flowers presided and many matters were presented for the general benefit of all clubs in the federation. Secretary Ad Shults read communications from the Hurley Reformed Church, Woodstock M. E. Church and the First Dutch Church of Kingston containing applications for membership in the federation.

The applications were acted upon and accepted by a unanimous vote. This brings the total list of 23 clubs as follows: St. James M. E.; St. Paul Lutheran; Albany Avenue Baptist; Church of the Comforter; Ponckhockie Congregational; St. Remy Men's Club; Clinton Avenue M. E.; St. John's Episcopal; Fair Street Reformed; Port Ewen Reformed; Trinity M. E.; Ulster Park Reformed; Wurts Street Baptist; Connelly Men's Club; East Kingston Men's Club; Trinity Lutheran; Church of the Redeemer; Elmendorf Presbyterian; Port Ewen Methodist; Woodstock M. E.; Hurley Reformed Church and First Dutch Reformed of Kingston.

It was agreed that any further clubs wishing to join the Federation in time to participate in the dart baseball schedule must present their application and the names of their representatives before September 17.

The appointments for the coming years of heads of departments were reported as follows: Recreation, Clarence S. Schoonmaker; dart baseball, William Newkirk; soft baseball, Sam Williams; church activities, George E. Lowe; boy's work, Noland H. Fuller; education and programs, Fred Bushnell; publicity, Warren F. Smith; civil service, Julian I. Gifford.

Several matters were discussed and some tabled to later dates but great satisfaction was expressed in the marked progress of this movement among the men's clubs of the vicinity. The motives of this federation are to promote good fellowship, civil service, religious and moral activities, interclub interest and stimulate the organizing of more men's clubs.

The soft baseball schedule for the federation has come to a close and the two championship teams of the respective leagues have started to decide the federation championship. The teams competing are the Port Ewen Reformed and the Elmendorf Presbyterians. The series is best two out of three and the Presbyterians have taken the first leg of the triangle. Because of the exceptional interest and sociability fostered by this sport during the summer it was decided by the delegates to have a soft ball banquet promoted by the teams but open to all members of federation clubs. Bids for this banquet must be turned in to the committee not later than the 12th of this month. A fine program will be arranged by the committee and the league trophy will be presented to the winner of the present playoff.

Tickets will be placed in the hands of the clubs as soon as final arrangements have been made as to date and place for this banquet. This event will close the summer activities and open the fall and winter programs. Fred Bushnell of the Elmendorf Presbyterian Church is chairman of the banquet and program arrangements and those wishing to obtain information should communicate with him or with Edsil Flowers, president of the federation.

With matters well in hand for the coming season and a sense of satisfaction for the season just past the federation meeting was moved adjourned until further notice from the secretary.

Penguins Are Travelers

Penguins may give the appearance of staid stay-at-homes, but actually they travel extensively—at least the Adelie and Emperor Penguins of the Antarctic do. Stones found in stomachs of these birds, Duncan Stewart, of Carleton college, reported to the American Journal of Science, indicate migrations of 200 to 400 miles.—Literary Digest.

Conference Ends In Failure

have occurred since the strike has been in progress can or will be condoned by the citizens of the city.

Miss Kuhlman's Statement

Miss Josepha Kuhlman, organizer in charge of the strike, who attended the conferences, when seen at the close of this morning's conference made the following statement: "The absolute refusal today of the company to discuss terms for an agreement was another illustration of the high-handed and unfair attitude which has been followed by the company during this entire controversy. It was due to just this attitude that forced these workers to go on strike after they had first used every reasonable method at their command.

Denies Responsibility.

"The attempt of the firm to place the responsibility upon our organized forces for the two acid throwing incidents is nothing more than a sham and excuse to hide their own unfair and reactionary policy.

To Continue Strike.

Miss Kuhlman continued: "We offer our aid to the police department of Kingston in discovering who committed these acts. It is our plan to continue our strike and with the increased strength which is coming to us each day to fight until the company now meets our terms.

Receiving Strike Benefits.

She said "Our strikers are receiving strike benefits. Our organization will back them to the limit.

Welcomes Seven Guests.

"We welcome the seven shirt workers from the Rotary shop in Albany as our guests in Kingston who are here to extend their friendly assistance to the local employes. They recently organized their own shop under the banner of the Amalgamated and immediately received wage increases and other benefits.

Giants Spill The Cubs By 5-1; Tigers Beat A's, Increase Lead

[illegible]

While the Giants were reducing Chicago to the status of a third-place club and maintaining their seven-game margin over the St. Louis Cardinals, the Tigers poked out a 4 to 2 decision over the Athletics and increased their lead over the idle New York Yankees to six games.

The Cards conquered Brooklyn 2 to 1 on Dizzy Dean's work on the mound and home runs by Jim Collins and Bill Delancey off Emil Leonard to go into second place. Dean won his 24th mound victory while Collins tied Mel Ott for the league home run lead at 32.

The Tigers played the revenge motif for all it was worth as Schoolboy Rowe, whose 16 game winning streak was ended by the A's and Johnny Marcum last week, came back to beat Marcum.

The Cleveland Indians opened their third-place duel with Boston with an 11 to 2 triumph as Ralph Winegarner pitched a six-hit game and Hal Trosky smashed in six runs, with his 31st homer and a single. The Browns shook last year's champions, the Senators, loose from their last mathematical chance at the pennant by winning 6 to 4.

The Phillies put together Roy Hansen's six-hit flinging and a home run by Dolph Camilli to beat the Reds 1 to 0 and turn back a Cincinnati threat to climb out of the National League cellar. Pittsburgh's Pirates clouted out an 8 to 2 decision over Boston.

Title Doubles Are Resumed After Delay

The title tennis play for the city championship got under way again Wednesday afternoon at Forsyth Park after a few days' delay due to inclement weather.

In the first match Stan Hancock and Ed Strong walked off the courts victorious over the team of Kennedy and Fox, but only after a tussle that lasted the full five sets. The battle was a ding-dong affair, and at times the speedy play of the contestants was nothing short of dazzling. The final count was 6-1, 4-6, 5-0, 4-6, 6-1.

The other semi-final tilt was between the second team of Rose and Olivet and Herzog and Fowler. This, too, was a close fight. Herzog and Fowler opened by taking the first set at 8-6. Rose and Olivet took the second 7-5 to even things up, and then went into the lead by annexing the third by 6-3. Needing only one more set for the match they went to work to finish it up and proceeded to do so when they took the final after a close squeeze, at at 8-6.

The finalists are scheduled to meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Rose and Olivet will take the court against Hancock and Strong.

The Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

A MEDLEY DREAM

Last night I dreamed that Cecil Smith
Was taking Rainbow's headsail down,
As Sopwith rode off Winston Guest
And then socked Ross upon the crown;
Mike Vanderbilt, at Chukker Three,
Scored seven goals and kept alive—
As Pedley conquered Wood and Shields
And J. McLarnin topped his drive.
Proudly upon Endeavour's deck
Young Schoolboy Rowe stood with a smile,
He had the spinnaker in hand
And [illegible] the windward course in style;
And Perry weaving in and out,
Was landing with an uppercut
On Mickey Cochrane's battered face
As J. McLarnin blew a putt.
Then Lawson Little caught a pass,
Swung [illegible] and almost got away,
As Babe Ruth picked up twenty yards
Through Barney Ross, who missed the play;
Then Dizzy Dean rode into Roark,
[illegible] wild and free,
As Johnny Goodman lined and tacked
And J. McLarnin got a 3.

THE BIG PUSH

The big push is on. For the next few weeks, the autumn air will be all cluttered up with parachute spinnakers, football spirals, tennis balls, golf balls and baseballs, flying leather, the stirring thud of polo ponies at top speed—almost any sport you can think of from a yacht race to a horse race—from a bunker to a back line—from a triple to a forty-yard pass.

Take a look at the parade as it starts to unwind.

Tonight Jimmy McLarnin, the double-fisted Irish lad, will attempt to hammer his way through the speed and defensive skill Barney Ross carries to the ring.

Barney will wear two crowns into the Long Island arena and McLarnin hopes to have one of them hanging over Barney's left ear before the fight is over.

Ross was the better man before, but McLarnin carries a double talisman inside the ropes tonight—he has never lost a return engagement—and no champion has ever left the Long Island arena without dents in his crown.

But the parade is only starting. Only a few jumps away Fred Perry is moving along at Forest Hills in defense of his tennis title, still the class of the backhand, forehand and overhead galaxy.

His main opponent is old Augustus J. Staleness, who always threatens after some fifteen months of almost consecutive competition.

ON TO MEADOWBROOK

The parade is still moving. At Meadowbrook, only a few miles away from the McLarnin-Ross-Perry shows, a crack western polo team is waiting for its second chance to bowl over the eastern four.

The western four upset the pick of the East at Chicago a year ago, and the odds still ride with Pedley, Cecil Smith, Roark and Boeseke, plus Rube Williams, if needed, when they pry open the first chukker at Meadowbrook on Saturday.

The best eastern chance comes from ponies that have been trained and conditioned for many weeks under hard play—plus a certain overconfidence the West might feel with Hitchcock missing.

Whatever happens, a capacity crowd will see a slashing battle.

On form there is no polo team in the world that should take the measure of Pedley, Smith, Roark and Boeseke—but the eastern four have been driven and ridden into hard-bitten physical and mental condition that may bring about an upset.

TO BROOKLINE AND NEWPORT

After Saturday the scene shifts to Brookline, Mass., and Newport, R. I.

The amateur golf championship at Brookline will be something new in American sport. On Monday morning 180 starters will be on hand for all match play, and by Saturday night there will be only one weary, bedraggled survivor left.

This entry list will represent something like 3,000,000 golf devotees and devotees from forty states, ranging from Oregon to Florida—from Texas to Maine—from Louisiana to Minnesota.

It will be the battle royal of all battle royals—180 contestants packed into one field—where at least 40 are good enough to win if they can salvage the breaks.

Here, at Brookline, the great roulette wheel of sport will spin—champions and ex-champions, gray-haired veterans and kids, all hoping this will be the week of timing and touch—the week when they are on their game—from Egan and Evans of 30 years ago, to young stars under 20 who can beat anyone on a given day.

Many bets have been made that no one can pick five men who might even reach the final round—and this should be odds against.

As the final round is played at Brookline a week from Saturday, Harold Vanderbilt will be sailing his Rainbow against T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour in the fifteenth of the challenge cup races that date back to 1851—when U. S. Grant and Robert E. Lee were unknown—when Stonewall Jackson and Phil Sheridan were 12 years away from fame—when baseball was either rounders or still unborn—when golf was 40 years away and intercollegiate football 20 or more.

All in all, with Giants and Tigers driving toward another world series, with the football rash breaking out again, that makes quite a parade. Men die and dreams fade, but the sporting spirit carries on.

Kingston High Held First Football Drill

Wednesday afternoon the Maroon gridders held their first workout of the season under Coaches Kias, Miller and Fuller. Twenty-six men reported for practice and it is expected that this number will be added to as new suits are issued during the present week.

All of the varsity members who have returned this fall were on hand except Emil Noce, rugged lineman. Coach Kias first put his charges through a brisk exercise drill. He then took over the backfield candidates who numbered nine, while Assistant Coaches Miller and Fuller put the linemen through their paces.

The squad was instructed in the fundamentals of blocking and tackling, the boys bowling over the dummies in a way that showed their eagerness to get back in uniform. A drill in formation as a team unit and in the military huddle, which the Maroon has employed so successfully, followed.

Coach Kias should have little trouble picking a hard hitting experienced line from the material available. The backfield alone offers his only problem, but two or three talented ball carriers should be uncovered among the recruits to aid "Mac" Tiano, all-DUSO half, and Art Davis, diminutive and smashing quarter.

High school students have shown great interest this year in the fortunes of their team. Support should not be lacking.

Several former stars of the Maroon gridiron watched practice yesterday. Among them "Stu" Parks, one of Kingston's greatest all around athletes, and Springfield College star; Sam Maroon, Columbia guard and ex-DUSO center; and "Jas" Cullum, slippery quarterback of the DUSO champs.

"Our Team Is Least Experienced Of Any Since War," Says Davidson

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—Army's football prospects this fall depend upon how quickly and successfully a squad of comparatively green players absorbs the intricacies of the Warner or wingback system of offense. The Soldiers are short on experience, with eight of the 1933 plebes on the varsity squad now busily drilling, and there's a brand new set of assistant coaches for Head Coach "Gar" Davidson, but there appears to be plenty of speed and power in the material at hand.

The Cadet staff may miss Earl (Red) Blaik and Harry (Fats) Ellinger, the two civilian coaches who accepted the call to re-organize Dartmouth's gridiron forces this year, but it has mustered an all-army group of aides who should give Lieut. Davidson all the help he needs.

"While our coaching staff may lack the experience of last year's staff, I am highly pleased with the results of their work so far and feel that their enthusiasm will make the staff as strong as in the past," said Davidson.

"Our team this year will be the least experienced of any since the war. While we have nine letter men back, only three were regulars last season, and it will be necessary to reconstruct the line almost completely."

Army's offense will be built around Texas Jack Buckler, the nimble triple-threat ball carrier who won all-American honors last year. Captain Joe Stancook, an expert blocker and heavy duty plunger, completes the solution of half the backfield problem. Ed Grove, who understudied "Beany" Johnson at quarterback last year, and Ralph King, a Buffalo boy, are slated for the other backfield assignments.

As the nucleus for a revamped line, Davidson depends on Jack Beall, regular tackle last year, and Bob Stillman, Colorado boy who alternated last season as long-side guard.

To fill the end berths vacated by Pete Kopcsak and Paul Burlingame, Davidson had tentatively picked Bill Shuler, a converted tackle, and Norman Edwards. Clinton Vincent and Tom Clifford are leading contenders for the pivot position. Carl Miller, tackle, and Bill Brearly, guard, round out the present line.

Army's passing attack has been a powerful scoring factor for the past several years and with Buckler to engineer the overhead game, aided by the new, more bullet-like ball, the coaching staff is concentrating on the aerial game.

The schedule: Sept. 29, Washburn (Kan.) College; Oct. 6, Davidson (N. C.) College; 13, Drake University; 20, University of the South (Sewanee); 27, Yale at New Haven; Nov. 3, Illinois at Champaign; 10, Harvard at Cambridge; 17, the Citadel (S. C.); 24, Notre Dame at New York; Dec. 1, Navy at Philadelphia.

(Tomorrow: Georgia Tech.)

Pros Starts Play Today In Glens Falls Open

Glens Falls, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—The word was passed around today to watch the flashy Ky Laffoon, youthful Denver professional, as the big push began in the $4,000 Glens Falls open.

Fresh from his record breaking triumph in the Hershey, Pa., open the westerner appeared to be in rare form as 200 outstanding shotmakers from the United States and Canada began playing in the 72-hole medal classic which continues through and including Saturday.

Laffoon toured the 6,254 yard tournament layout in 67, four under par and within two shots of the competitive record. In a practice round yesterday to establish himself a favorite.

Runyan of White Plains, newly crowned PGA champion, turned in a 72.

Among other leading shot makers seeking a share of the prize money are Johnny Farrell, Willie MacFarlane, Craig Wood, Bill Melhorn, Whiffy Cox, Walter Kozak, Al Watrous, Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Golden and Jimmy Hines of Great River, L. I.

The field at the end of today's 18 holes will be reduced to competitors ranking within the first 108 places. Another 18 holes will be played tomorrow, after which the field will be whittled to 60 for the final 36 holes on Saturday.

"THEY MADE HIM RUN"

Ross Favored To Retain Title In His Fight With McLarnin Tonight

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)—On the right fist of Jimmy McLarnin—a leather swathed five inch shell that has never before failed him twice in succession—rests tonight the fighting future of two great ring men.

For fifteen rounds in Madison Square Garden's Bowl on Long Island, the Dublin Dynamiter will swing that weapon on bright-eyed Barney Ross of Chicago, the youngster who laughed once at that fist and came on to make boxing history by adding Jimmy's welterweight championship to his own lightweight crown.

Others have tossed off McLarnin's right hand blasts the first time, but none dared the lightning a second time and survived. But so keen is the 25 year old dual champion, so fast and sharp his punching, so neat his footwork and so nimble his fighting brain, that here again the experts feel history will be written. The odds in Ross' favor are 6 to 5 but the feeling is so strong for him that he may enter the ring the 2 to 1 favorite of a 35,000 crowd that will pay about $150,000 in gate receipts.

For McLarnin, trained to the moment, heavier than when Ross beat him in May, this can be only a punching fight. Not fast enough at 29, to cope with the youth that bubbles out of the champion, Jimmy has drilled everlastingly on the right hand that leveled almost everything it has touched in fifteen years of campaigning.

Jimmy nailed Ross with that right hand in the second round of their first battle and Barney took it, shook his head and finding it still in place, came on with fresh confidence to a sparkling victory. He wore McLarnin down with his relentless, sharpshooting attack, but even then the margin was narrow.

So for him, almost as much as for McLarnin, that right fist holds many answers. Just coming into his full powers, bigger through the shoulders and stronger, Ross must conquer, with other hazards of the occasion, the overconfidence that comes with looking once into a rifle nozzle and finding it isn't loaded.

Sure that McLarnin will make him carry the fight and will lie in wait for him with a cocked right hand, Barney has promised to make that the issue. He intends to swarm over the Irishman from the start. Victory for McLarnin would bear out two steadily rising precedents. Since the Madison Square Garden Bowl was built for the second Sharkey-Schmeling match, no champion has defended his title successfully there. On top of that the last ten welterweight titleholders, from Pete Latzo down, all have failed in their first championship defenses.

With Ross already resting here, McLarnin planned to drive down from his Orangeburg, N. Y., training camp in time for the weighing in at 1 p. m. (eastern standard time). The main bout is scheduled to start between 8:30 and 9 p. m. (E.S.T.) The show will not be broadcast.

National Tennis in Third Round of Play

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—Fred Perry appears to be poised for another year as men's singles tennis champion of America.

Although the British holder of the title has not yet had an opportunity or occasion to unsheath the [illegible] of his strokes he is easily the cream of the 32 survivors in the third round of the current 53rd national tournament.

The sparkling Briton, who retained the Davis Cup for Great Britain by his fourth match [illegible] victory over Frank X. Shields at Wimbledon in July, has [illegible] the American entrants are [illegible] his scalp and therefore declines to make any forecast about his chances of repeating.

"I'm out to win, naturally," he said, "but I won't say that I'm going to retain the championship. I guarantee only one thing—I'll play until I drop."

While Perry drew a breather today in Jack Tidball of [illegible], Pa., several of the American stars found themselves deeply involved in tight matches.

The stellar contest of the third round brought together Gregory S. Mangin, twice former national indoor titleholder, and the giant Roderich Menzel, with the outcome considered a toss up.

Other third rounders included Frank Shields versus Jack Tidball; John Van Ryn versus F. D. H. Wilde of England; Sidney B. Wood, Jr., versus Frank Bowden, and Berkeley Bell versus Vernon Kirby of South Africa.

The Professor "Weighs In" the Two Big Sloops

Bristol, R. I., Sept. 6 (AP)—Whenever the British decide to have another go at the historic America's cup, the New York Yacht Club calls in Professor Harry W. Webb of Columbia University to give the contenders a final and official inspection before they are permitted to go to the starting line.

It is much like the weighing-in procedure which precedes a prize fight, except that in cup racing it is the yachts, and not their skippers that are subjected to Webb's expert scrutiny.

The professor was in Bristol today, measuring in the defender, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow. He measured the British challenger, Tom Sopwith's Endeavour, when she hauled out here after her arrival from the other side and found she conformed to the rules. It is his duty to determine that both defender and challenger measure into the "J" class, or a 76 rating.

It is all very simple to him. He balances up the draft, load, waterline length, freeboard, quarter beam and a few other details, including said area—a very important one—and is able to determine if "J" class specifications have been strictly observed. If they have not, he applies a penalty — where it hurts —reduction in sail area.

Designers observe the rules very strictly, and so do the builders, so he finds little occasion to exercise his judicial powers.

Flexible SPEED

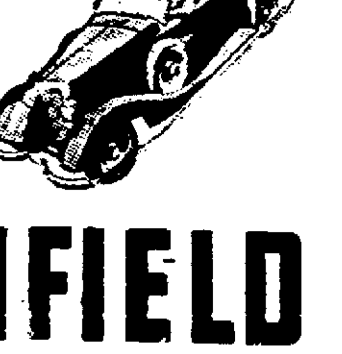

Change of pace! Flashing speed when you need it . . . That's the rule of the highway today!

Putting your car on Richfield Hi-Octane gives you flexible speed from standing start to split-second pick-up when you pull out to pass.

Just as the inch or the foot is used to measure length—"octane" is the technical unit for measuring the anti-knock quality of gasoline.

The higher the octane rating, the better the anti-knock quality. That's why we call it Richfield Hi-Octane.

Baker and Dodge in Mound Duel as Milkmen Shut Out Gardeners, 1-0

Wednesday evening at the Athletic Field a large gathering of fans witnessed a pitching duel between Eddie Baker and Jack Dodge. The occasion was the return game between the Independent Milkmen and the Crystal Gardens.

Eddie proceeded to shut out the Gardeners as the Milkmen registered a 1-0 win over their bitter rivals. The veteran left hander twirled a beautiful game and allowed but three hits in the seven innings played. Dodge gave him a close run allowing but six hits.

The only scoring was done in the first frame when, with two down, Davis threw Thomas's grounder a little wide of first base and the hitter went to second. Dawkins smacked out a double and Thomas crossed the platter.

Hoffman almost tied up the score in the second but he was nailed at the plate. He opened the fourth with another hit but the next three batters went out in quick succession.

The fifth was a lively frame. Ellsworth singled, stole second and Davis followed with another single. Ellsworth was then trapped between third and home and was tagged out. Meanwhile Davis was seen tripping around the bases and was tagged out in like fashion.

In the final frame Ellsworth walked with two down and stole second. Baker threw high trying to pick the runner off but Messinger's quick throw to third nipped him at the bag to end the game.

The box score:

Says Golf Pro's Wife Should Remain Home

Chicago, Sept. 6 (AP)—Says Gene Sarazen: The hand that rocks the cradle is rocking a lot of golf's finest professionals into bankruptcy and mediocrity.

Possibly Gene thinks he'll be safe from subsequent feminine wrath now that he's about to hop a boat for Australia for an exhibition tour, but he refused to mince words as he swung a verbal mashie at his target during a brief stay-over in Chicago.

"The saddest thing in golf isn't a muffled two foot putt that loses a big championship," said Gene, a married man himself. "It's those zealous, jealous and gossiping wives of our playing professionals, who haunt their husbands and watch them fire every shot in a money tournament or open championship. It's time the shackled pros arose in a body and told them to stay home, watch their pro shops or sew buttons on the old man's shirts."

Sarazen said Mrs. Sarazen is an ideal professional's wife as she never follows him and seldom talks about golf when he comes home. With that he paid tribute to the wife of Paul Runyan, most successful of the money playing pros last winter.

"She's one woman who minds her own business," Gene said. "After he had won a certain championship, Runyan telephoned his wife.

"'Honey, I just won,' he said.

"'Fine,' she shot back, when you come home, bring two loaves of bread. We've got company for dinner.'"

Thumbnail History Of America's Cup

No. 10. Herreshoff's Tactics Decide Race.

New York, Sept. 6 (AP).—A master minding helmsman backed up by a courageous crew in a lumpy, running sea lent a dramatic touch to the America's Cup races of 1893 between Lord Dunraven's British challenger, Valkyrie, and the defending Vigilant, owned by a New York syndicate.

The series was run on a three out of five basis and Vigilant had won the first two races by margins of more than five minutes and ten minutes, respectively.

The third race was sailed on Friday, October 13. The sky was overcast, a heavy easterly wind swept the course and the sea was in a fit of misbehavior.

Valkyrie got the jump at the start, and was two minutes ahead when she rounded the mark boat and headed for home.

Nat Herreshoff, who designed and built the Defender at his now famous Bristol, R. I., shipyard, was sailing the Vigilant and resorted to daring tactics to save the race.

Three men climbed the mast and working on their lofty perches with the assistance of the remainder of the crew below, set a pyramid of rounded and hardened canvas—taut as a drumhead—in 15 minutes. It was risky business, for should the sails part they would go thundering down over the bow. They didn't.

Valkyrie ran afoul of trouble. The crew slightly tore the spinnaker while setting it. The squall did the rest and the sail was soon in tatters.

Vigilant finally won the race by 40 seconds.

Where Shetland Ponies Come From

Many Shetland ponies come from the Shetland (or Zetland) islands, an archipelago off northern Scotland, where this diminutive breed of horses originated and from which they received their name. Others come from breeding farms in other parts of Scotland and in England. They have been successfully raised in America also. Ideal Shetlands, according to stud book rating, are 10½ hands high, although many mature animals are nine hands or less. Highland ponies, raised extensively in the Shetland islands, are slightly larger than the Shetlands.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Science Puts Politics Under a Microscope

Psychologists Busy At Yale University Find That Administration Has Given Voters "Even Break

New York, [illegible] the [illegible] Roosevelt administration has [illegible] represented the wishes [illegible] 1932 was presented [illegible] American Psychological Association [illegible].

The [illegible] study of the attitudes of [illegible] voters in [illegible] states [illegible] by Samuel P. Hayes, Jr., of Mt. Holyoke College. The work was done at Yale University. The voters included about [illegible] for Roosevelt, [illegible] for Hoover and about [illegible] for the Socialist ticket.

"[illegible] attitudes of the majority of the nation's voters in the fall of 1932," Dr. Hayes wrote, "most of President Roosevelt's administrative acts have well represented the electorate. This was true of his stand on war debts, repeal, farm relief, the bonds and so forth.

"The most important instances where he failed to represent the popular wishes (of 1932) concerned (1) The great increase of government expenditures, (2) The failure to protect dry states against the importation of illegal liquors, (3) The distribution of direct federal relief to private individuals.

"All of these were opposed by a majority of the electorate.

"It should be noted that the failure to be strictly representative is not necessarily to be criticised in an administration. National leaders cannot be merely followers."

The most important sex differences the report said "concerned the wider women's advocacy of world court membership, and government ownership and their strongest opposition to repeal. On the whole large proportions of the women tended to favor the Socialistic propostls, both economic and international, than was the case with the man."

"Among the occupations there was no evidence of a class conflict. True the professional persons group was quite different from labor, but the large majority fell between these two extremes."

Mississippi River Steamboating

One of the oddities of the early Mississippi river steamboating was that the pilot and not the captain was the master of the boat. The captain ran the crew and the cargo, but from the moment the lines were cast off until they were again made fast the pilot took orders from no one. He was supposed to "know" the river and he alone was responsible for the safe passage of the boat. And the pilots did know the river. They had to serve a long apprenticeship, the length of time depending on the individual and only ending when they were able to find their way up and down stream by day or night over the unmapped and unlighted 1,200-mile stretch from New Orleans to St. Louis. It was not until after the Civil war, when the government installed lighthouses and began channel improvements, that the positions of pilot and captain became normal.

Hiking 150 Years Old

Hiking is not modern, according to information revealed in London. It was called "pedestrianism" over a century ago, but the pastime was the same, according to a description in the Sporting Magazine, published in 1792. The opening paragraph of the article on pedestrianism declares that it is "an exercise which . . . has lately risen into much notice." It relates that Foster Powell, of Leeds, for a hundred-guinea wager, walked from London to York and back in five days, in the middle of November. He afterward accomplished several similar feats, and in his fifty seventh year was still taking on bets. In 1765, according to the magazine, "a young woman went from Blencogo in Scotland to within two miles of Newcastle in one day, which is about 72 miles."

Using Word "Stultify"

The word stultify is not a synonym of lie. It means "to cause to appear absurdly inconsistent; to give an appearance of foolishness to." Hence, it implies inconsistency rather than falsehood. One could say, "I do not wish to appear inconsistent," which would be somewhat similar to, "I do not wish to stultify myself." If you wish to imply falsehood, another word than stultify should be used.—Literary Digest.

Port Chester, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—Police awaited today the arrival of two New York [illegible] to write finis to the fatal shooting of Mrs. [illegible] by Charles F. McClure, [illegible] former sweetheart, and the subsequent death from self inflicted bullet wounds.

McClure, a mathematics teacher in the Port Chester Junior High School, died last night in the United Hospital from two pistol wounds in the abdomen, the result of turning the gun that shot Mrs. Danyew through the heart on himself.

Police said McClure shot Mrs. Danyew, formerly Miss Florence Lemming, in her automobile, Tuesday night because he could not bear the thought of working near her under a pending transfer to the senior high school, where she taught. She was married in July.

Her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hasbrouck, and her husband were expected today to help police close their investigation, they said.
